VANCOUVER (CP) — A total of 142 yardmen employed in the Canadian Pacific Railway's Greater Vancouver yard, hooked off as being unwell Friday in an apparent protest over the disciplining of five men.

The disciplining of the men involves refusal to do work because of Pacific Great Eastern Railway strikers' picket lines or refusal to handle what were called "hot" railway cars.

The CPR said supervisory personnel were doing an "admirable" job in place of the hooked off crew members.

A total of 177 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen (CBRT) have been on strike port, has admitted writing the letter without the knowledge of the premier.

He told reporters the government will not bow to ultimata of the kind issued by Alan Macfarlane (I-Oak Bay) in the House Thursday night.

Mr. Macfarlane said in his speech that if the attorney-general doesn't name the culprit and announce what action has been taken by the government by Tuesday, a Liberal MLA will "do his duty for him."

By this time next week the crown's position in the matter will be clear," Mr. Bonner said Friday morning.

But until then he will not discuss the identity.

"I would rather err on the side of silence, than by inadvertence, tip the scales against any one."

"An attorney-general or crown counsel either lays charges, or he shuts up. There isn't any middle ground available."

Mr. Bonner said any further statement on the case will be made through official channels in due course.

He declined to elaborate on the term, official channels, but indicated this could mean the prosecutor's office in Vancouver.

The letter was sent over a signature purported to be the premier's to an aide to Prime Minister Pearson.

Legislative Buildings

No Ceremony for New Flag

Premier Bonnett said Canada's new maple leaf flag will fly at the legislative buildings Monday. It will also fly above all other government buildings.

The Nova Scotia ceremonies will be in the Province House with Canadian Clubs taking part.

In Quebec the new flag has been flying unofficially for several weeks. Premier Jean Lesage plans a public ceremony at the main entrance of the legislature.

GUARD OF HONOR

Lieutenant-Governor Paul Comtois will review a guard of honor, Maurice Roy and Anglican Bishop Russell Brown will attend.

In Ontario, school boards have been asked to raise the maple leaf flag Feb. 15.

Premier Robarts, saying "the Canadian people can and should join ranks in support of our new national standard," plans a ceremony at the legislative buildings to coincide with the Ottawa flag-raising. He said later the new flag will be flown over government office buildings throughout the province.

The Winnipeg ceremony will feature official presentation by Premier Duff Roblin of the Red Ensign to a color guard made up of the three armed services. It will be raised on a special flagpole in the legislature's library as a backdrop behind the list of war dead.

At Regina, there will be a fly-past of aircraft from the RCAF

Raiders Foiled

Special raid on their North Vietnamese mentors.

Work details still searched wreckage of the four-storey concrete bungalow at Qui Nhon where two Americans were killed and 19 are missing feared dead after a Viet Cong terror bombing Wednesday.

RAID A SUCCESS

U.S. Air Force pilots who took part in the 160-plane attack Thursday said the joint U.S.-South Vietnamese action against the Chuay Le barracks area was a success.

The Americans streaked in below 1,000 feet to suppress anti-aircraft fire with fragmentation bombs and rockets. Then propeller-driven South Vietnamese fighter-bombers, also operating under the clouds, picked out assigned targets in the area, 8½ miles north of the border.

Capt. John B. Cutler said a reconnaissance survey at dusk showed a fairly large percentage of about 150 buildings in the area damaged, some destroyed.

REPRISALS FEARED

In Saigon meanwhile, civilians fearing Communist reprisals for Thursday's air strikes against North Vietnam, began digging air raid shelters.

On the political scene, the South Vietnamese armed forces were reported having trouble setting up a "war cabinet" to replace the civilian government of Premier Tran Van Huong, toppled two weeks ago.

In his sharply-worded attack,

No Special Diet for Anemia And High Blood Pressure

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Could you suggest a diet for anemia and high blood pressure.

My condition seems to be a paradox. I didn't think it possible to have anemia and high blood pressure at the same time. —M. R.

No, it's not a paradox. It is quite possible. It is true that a person with a severe anemia MAY have low blood pressure—for instance, if the anemia is related to low thyroid function or chronic or subtle blood loss.

Conversely, high blood pressure can be due to certain kidney disorders accompanied by loss of considerable albumin and microscopic quantities of blood, with an anemia developing even though the blood pressure is high.

VARIOUS CAUSES

There are various causes of both problems, anemia and elevated blood pressure, and they can occur at the same time.

Proper diet for anemia should include ample protein (lean meat, fish, fowl, dairy products).

If iron deficiency is present, this usually is treated with medications containing that element.

There is no specific diet for high blood pressure, except that the amount of salt of sodium products should be limited.

If the patient is overweight, then a low-calorie diet (for reducing) is in order. Or in some cases in which there has been serious kidney impairment, protein may be restricted.

But there is no special diet for a combination of anemia and high blood pressure.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any treatment or cure for chronic allergic conjunctivitis? I have had it since childhood; my eyes are constantly burning and tearing. I must be allergic to everything in the air. I also get pus in my eyes, and styes.—MRS. H. W.

If it really is allergic conjunctivitis (inflammation of the conjunctiva, or membranes inside the eyelid and on the front of the eyeball) any effective attack must be at the allergy.

With the presence of pus and styes, I suggest a careful study of the case to make sure that it is not some chronic infection. Or, of course, irritation from the allergy may have inflamed the tissues and permitted infection to get started besides.

It is not a comfortable problem to have to live with; neither is it safe. I suspect that more than one condition is present, and urge that you consult an ophthalmologist eye specialist with the expectation he will follow your case over a period of time.

Dear Dr. Molner: I plan to have cosmetic surgery on my overgrown nose. This is a small city with only two plastic surgeons. How can I be sure they are good reputable men before I get involved, and what do you think of cosmetic surgery? —MRS. C.

First ask your regular physician to advise you. He can easily determine if he doesn't already know whether the surgeons have been certified by the national specialty board.

What do I think of cosmetic surgery? If it is really needed there is no substitute for it.

Pearson on Lesage

'Would Do Fine Job'

OTTAWA (CP)—Amid growing speculation that Jean Lesage may return to federal politics, Prime Minister Pearson said Friday that the Quebec premier would do a "fine job" if he did come to Ottawa.

Cabinet Shuffle

Postmaster General Goes to Immigration

OTTAWA (CP)—In a cabinet shuffle involving four portfolios, Prime Minister Pearson Friday brought in a new Quebec member—Leo Cadieux—and shifted three other cabinet members following the resignation of Jean-Paul Deschatelets as works minister.

Rene Tremblay, who has taken a sabbatical from his immigration department, trades jobs with Jack Nicholson by moving to the less-controversial post office department. Lucien Cardin, succeeded as associate defence minister by Mr. Cadieux, becomes the new minister of public works.

Death of Daughter

Mr. Deschatelets submitted his resignation Wednesday, a week after the death of his 23-year-old daughter Helene. In his letter to Mr. Pearson, Mr. Deschatelets said the reasons for his resignation "arise out of the tragedy and sorrow of the death of our beloved daughter."

The prime minister accepted the resignation with "grateful thanks for your services . . . which have been both efficient and devoted."

Former Assistant

He said, in a reference to the Dorion judicial inquiry, "a situation . . . prompted me to delay any change (in the cabinet) I might wish to make." But after Mr. Deschatelets' resignation, changes were necessary immediately.

The Dorion inquiry is investigating allegations of attempted bribery and coercion by ministerial aides. A central figure in Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Mr. Tremblay.

Did Good Job

Mr. Nicholson, as postmaster-general, has also been responsible for Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. Mr. Pearson said he wasn't yet able to say whether the new immigration minister would continue to be responsible for housing. He had "done a good job indeed" on housing.

The switch in portfolios will provide Mr. Tremblay with less difficult responsibilities.

Difficult Period

The 42-year-old minister headed the immigration department for one year—he was previously minister without portfolio—and it has been a difficult period. He has come under heavy opposition fire for his handling of departmental affairs and been criticized for the purchase of furniture on easy credit terms. This was followed by the allegations concerning Mr. Denis.

Mr. Cadieux, representing the constituency of Terrebonne, has been in the Commons since 1962.

He had not been prominently mentioned in the rumors and reports that circulated through Ottawa prior to the official announcement. But the portfolio swap between Mr. Tremblay, MP for Matapedia-Matane, and Mr. Nicholson had been predicted in many quarters.

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman at the city morgue said Friday the results of laboratory tests are being awaited to determine the cause of death of Helene Deschatelets.

The 23-year-old nightclub singer, daughter of retiring federal Works Minister Jean-Paul Deschatelets, was found dead in her bed Feb. 3.

She had taken sick three days earlier, but had returned home after a brief stay in hospital.

The morgue spokesman said material had been sent for laboratory analysis last week following an autopsy on the young woman's body. He said the results are expected within the next three days.

baker said the change in portfolios for Mr. Tremblay means an acknowledgment by Mr. Pearson "of the validity of criticism of the minister and that department."

But he said a change of ministers without a change of philosophy won't improve matters. Canadians were entitled to assurance by the prime minister of a complete cleanup of "those practices that have been carried on."

The opposition leader said Mr. Pearson had no justification for not disclosing details surrounding the recent dismissal from the cabinet of Yvon Dupuis, 38-year-old minister without portfolio. Mr. Pearson asked him to resign.

No Urgency

Mr. Pearson indicated at his press conference Friday the cabinet vacancy caused by Mr. Dupuis' departure would not be filled immediately. Because no portfolio was involved, he said, there is no urgency.

The associate defence portfolio, which Mr. Cadieux takes over, has been filled by Mr. Cardin, representing Richelieu-Verchères, since the Liberal government assumed office in April, 1963. The 45-year-old lawyer and naval veteran has run into little apparent difficulty during his tenure.

Disappointed

Mr. Pearson was clearly disappointed to see Mr. Deschatelets, member for Montreal-Maisonnette-Rosemont, leave the cabinet. "We have been colleagues and friends in the House for a good many years," he said.

Mr. Deschatelets, 52, approached the prime minister last Sunday and said he thought he would resign because of the death of his daughter. Mr. Pearson said he asked him to reconsider for a day or two.

Mr. Nicholson, as postmaster-general, has also been responsible for Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. Mr. Pearson said he wasn't yet able to say whether the new immigration minister would continue to be responsible for housing. He had "done a good job indeed" on housing.

The switch in portfolios will provide Mr. Tremblay with less difficult responsibilities.

Three Die, 24 Flee Ship

HONOLULU (AP)—Three men were reported killed Thursday night in an engine-room explosion aboard the Danish freighter Margit, about 1,100 miles southwest of here.

Twenty-four other persons—including one woman—look to life-boats and were rescued Friday by a U.S. Navy cargo ship after abandoning their burning freighter.

The rescue ship, the Greenville Victory, after picking up survivors, messaged the U.S. Coast Guard in Honolulu:

"The survivors reported that at least three men are known to be lost from the blast in the engine room."

The freighter blast injured at least three other crew members.

One of those rescued had burns over 70 per cent of his body. Another had a possible leg fracture. A third "suffered a sharp blow to the stomach and is in pain," the Greenville Victory radioed.

The rescue ship had no trained medical personnel. Efforts were pressed to reach a ship with a doctor aboard.

The rescue was made about 11 hours after the Margit radioed she was afire.

A Coast Guard plane circling the Margit radioed that the ship was "burning out of control."

The 4,967-ton Margit, carrying a cargo of flour, asbestos and cast iron from San Francisco and Los Angeles for Calcutta, India, sent out an SOS Thursday night asking for immediate assistance.

The Margit sailed from San Francisco Feb. 1, calling at Los Angeles and then heading out across the Pacific.

Weakening Winds

THERE IS CONSIDERABLE evidence to suggest that the great "winds of change" which have swept Africa may soon be blowing themselves out as far as the Western world is concerned.

Certainly a switch in attitudes toward the emerging nations of the dark continent has been very noticeable recently in both the United States and Britain.

Where once the buffeting African winds were not only tolerated but greeted with generous sympathy, walls of resistance are being built. Just how wide this new feeling about Africa spreads on both sides of the Atlantic can be assessed by the views now expressed by many of the West's leading opinion-makers.

Financial Times (London): "In many cases the grant of independence to African countries has led to political instability, with changes of government often taking place by more or less violent methods. . . there is no doubt that in the West today a mood of disillusionment about Africa is prevalent."

The Washington Daily News (Columnist Lyle C. Wilson): "Adlai E. Stevenson, U.S. head man at the United Nations, pleaded for UN action to head off anarchy in Africa. He said the African continent would revert to a primitive state of anarchy unless each African government recognized the right of others to exist and refrained from trying to overthrow those it disliked."

"If Mr. Stevenson's fears are realized and the African continent does revert to a primitive condition, it will not have far to go. A short backtrack, Mr. Stevenson should have been thinking of that three years ago when he went along with a U.S. policy decision to invite into the company of civilized states some backward, loosely established, self-deficient African nations. In November, 1961, the UN Assembly was asked to throw reason out of the window in behalf of adopting a believe-it-or-not resolution against colonialism asserting: 'That inadequacy of political, economic, social or education preparedness should never serve as a pretext for delaying independence.'"

The Times (of London): "Events, and even more propaganda, have in the past year fed a widespread feeling that in the last resort the issue in Africa is a fight between the white race and the black. The Communists swim with an incoming tide of racial feelings. How far will the tide rise?"

Lord Thomson of Fleet: "African politicians are peculiar people. Unless you have their name in large type on the front page every day, they think you are against them."

Adrian Crawley (British Labor MP): "The last shreds of make-believe are being torn from the African scene. Chaos, bringing with it Communist infiltration and the threat of ultimate Communist control, now faces even the most stable of the new African countries. For years the blinder champions of self-determination have been proclaiming that African nationalism was too strong for Communism. Today the illusion-mongers are changing their tune."

The New Republic (Washington, D.C.): "What is now going on in the UN skyscraper is a tragedy for Africa. A well-informed East European expressed it in these words: 'In the foreign offices in Paris, Prague, Rome and Warsaw, officials are tired of Africa, of the money which is spent there without visible results, of the promises which have been broken. Every white power, Communist or capitalist, is re-examining it in the sense of reducing commitments, reducing aid. The white world is losing interest in Africa.'"

The Daily Express (London): "What of the African image overseas. One would not think the continent had any personal domestic problems when hearing African delegates speak at the United Nations. They are resplendent in tribal robes, they form the biggest bloc—of 35 members—in that ever-growing organization. Continuous giggling, together with pedantic and monolithic orations have dimmed their popularity and their effect. And when after the massacres of Stanleyville, they denounced the West for aggression, millions of people must have wondered whether black Africa can be taken seriously at the moment."

The time has come, it would seem, that African nations must devote themselves to a little house-cleaning to prove to the outside world that they are both willing and capable of assuming the responsibilities of free and independent nations; that they are, in fact, ready to contribute to our civilization as well as receive from it.

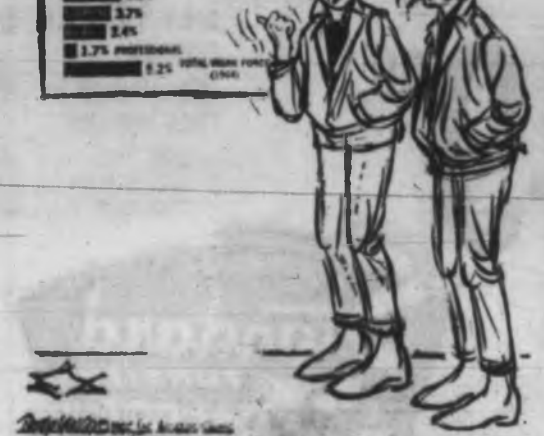

It Happens All Over

MOST PEOPLE are familiar with the old joke—or its variations—of one, Henry Zakyzywinyzariyonyz who having been persuaded to change his name, in the interests of simplicity, changed it to Bill Zakyzywinyzariyonyz.

Apocryphal as this story may be it now has a match in real life. According to a front page item in one of Britain's leading daily newspapers, Sir Hugh Vere Huntly Duff Lucas-Tooth has now changed his name to Sir Hugh Vere Huntly Duff Munro-Lucas-Tooth of Teaninich.

It should, however, be pointed out that unlike Mr. Zakyzywinyzariyonyz Sir Hugh did not change his name for simplicity but for the sake of a legacy. Which makes a difference.

THIS could be a season of Parliament which, when over, most Canadians might wish had never happened. Melancholy rumors continue to circulate that more, much more, is to come of scandal in high places.

Understandably, because gossip is difficult to deal with, the whippers have gone unrelenting. But they have been loud enough that this very lack of denial becomes disturbing.

Prime Minister Pearson and what is overwhelmingly a majority of Liberals have been appalled at how wide the smear of the brush of scandal has been across the face of the government.

The prime minister, publicly proclaiming that he won't tolerate what he has called "a dirty establishment," has been doing some quiet housecleaning.

There have been resignations of a few second echelon men, parliamentary secretaries and special and executive assistants. And a cabinet shuffle on a larger scale is in the works.

But the prime minister, promising a thorough housecleaning only, as he has phrased it, when the need for it is clearly demonstrated, has been taking his time.

His colleagues and confidants say that he is waiting for Mr. Justice Frederic Doherty's report on the politics involved in the Mafia conspiracy.

But some of the Young Turks among the Liberals, becoming impatient, aren't prepared to wait while, case after case, the stain of scandal seems to spread.

In reprisal they are hinting darkly of spilling the scandal beans on the Conservatives.

They say they have cases of improprieties and indiscretions among the Conservatives in the six years they were in power which should match, and maybe more than match their own.

Documented, too, they insist. The story is that they are sitting on the lid, specifically forbidden by the prime minister to pry into this can of worms.

And the prime minister's thinking here, they tell you in explanation, is that now if the Liberals plaster the Conservatives as they themselves have been plastered, already disturbed by this talk, rumor, gossip and some evidence of political immorality, will be revolted beyond endurance.

If it turns out that the Conservatives in their days of power were tarred with the same scandal brush as the Liberals now are, the taxpayer will be outraged to the point of disowning both old parties.

The political reaction of scandal piled on scandal could be that of "A plague on both your houses," with the voters denouncing the two old parties and turning, in disgust, to the New Democrats.

There is some early evidence of this already, with the Liberals and Conservatives alike admitting warily that the NDP has been gaining substantial support in many of the metropolitan areas the two old parties used to consider their private preserves.

Should this early trend, unchecked, continue, with more evidence of political immorality giving it added escalation, alarmists among the Conservatives and Liberals warn that the election of an NDP administration to federal power in Ottawa would be quite possible.

One of the odd developments in this current disenchantment with the two old parties—aggravated by the continuing and unsettling minority government situation—is that Social Credit, which has been making a pitch on the theme of political virtue, hasn't been noticeably benefiting.

It has been NDP leader Tommy Douglas, an old guard back in the days of M. J. Coldwell, and not new reformer of the snow white political image,

Optimism Renewed

By GODFREY HODGSON, from Washington

IMPERCEPTIBLY, yet with gathering momentum over the four years since the inauguration of the late President Kennedy, something important has been happening to Americans—cheerfulness has been breaking out again.

This is not a vague, unverifiable judgment on the general outlook of 180 million people. It is something more specific than that. American intellectuals and the American government are now throwing off the fears that oppressed them during the Eisenhower years, and reverting to the traditional American faith that problems are there to be solved.

President Lyndon Johnson was not flanneling when he said in his State of the Union message that the U.S. has "re-emerged into the fullness of its self-confidence and purpose."

Let me give three concrete examples:

(1) American economists and the American administration now believe that economic recessions are not inevitable. "No longer," wrote the president in this year's economic report to Congress, "will we tolerate the ravages of the business cycle." And his economic advisers, in the same message, spelled out the same claim in more learned language: "Both our increasing understanding of the effectiveness of fiscal policy, and the continual improvement of the detail, accuracy and timeliness of our economic information, strengthen the conviction that recessions can be increasingly avoided and ultimately wiped out."

Nor is this merely a comfortable illusion that is being sold by the administration to soothe the public. The belief that recessions are not inevitable may be wrong. But it is increasingly widely held here.

The often gloomy dean of U.S. commentators, Walter Lippmann, has endorsed it; indeed, he goes further than the guarded claims of the president's economic advisers. He has described the new economics, introduced into federal policy by Dr. Walter Heller, President Kennedy's chief adviser, as "a benign revolution which makes it possible that the costs of improving schools and colleges, of reducing poverty, of rebuilding slums, can be covered by calculated increases in the national output of wealth." Nothing could easily be more optimistic than that.

(2) With a new confidence and a new purpose, the idea has taken root in Washington that poverty is not inevitable, and that education is the weapon with which it can be defeated. This idea, indeed, is THE fashionable one in Washington at the moment, and it is only a slightly exaggeration to say that all roads lead to it.

The one conclusion, for example, that has been drawn by officials in the department of labor from their efforts to reduce unemployment, is that "education is the key parameter," as one of them put it to me. This year a large proportion of the funds set aside for retraining unemployed workers in new trades is being diverted, with congressional permission, to give these same workers general basic education.

The same idea is at the heart of the "war on poverty" which is Mr. Johnson's most distinctive graft on the ideas of the Kennedy administration. A large part of the money that is being spent is going on schools; but beyond that is the idea, influenced by such different thinkers as the tough-minded economist, J. K. Galbraith and the Catholic Socialist Michael Harington, that it is through inferior education that poverty is transmitted in the body politic, just as characteristics are carried in genes, and that only education can therefore make poverty tolerable by making it no longer hereditary.

Mr. Johnson's bold education program is not the cause, but the result, of the new interest in education. One revealing sign is that young liberal journalists and intellectuals in Washington, such as Mr. Christopher Jencks and Mr. Marcus Raskin for example, who were preoccupied with foreign policy a few years ago, are now absorbed in the theory and practice of educational reform.

(3) Well-informed Americans now no longer fear the Communist powers nor do they expect the cold war to last for ever.

This is a sweeping statement. Many Americans still fear what Russia might do in a crisis. Many are increasingly uneasy about Chinese policy since the Chinese nuclear explosion. And the administration has always been careful to qualify its hopes of easing East-West tensions with many a solemn rider and warning.

But the fact remains that in the state department, and even in the Central Intelligence Agency, the tendency now is to down-grade earlier estimates of Russian military, economic and ideological strength. It is accepted as an article of faith, for example, that Russian aid and diplomacy have flopped; that Communism is intrinsically unable to solve the problems of agricultural production; that as an economic system it is bound to adjust itself more and more closely to the Western system of incentives.

The other day, Mr. Robert McNamara, secretary of defense, was asked whether the country had won the power, with its allies, to win any war it might be called upon to fight. He eventually gave a brilliant and careful analysis of what America could and could not do. But his first answer was simply: "Yes."

In general, since the Kennedy-McNamara build-up of U.S. strategic and conventional strength, and especially since Cuba, well-informed people here are quite simply less scared of Russian military power than they were, say, in 1961, just as government scientists here no longer seriously fear that Russian space research is ahead of theirs except in individual details.

Of course, the new optimism may turn out to be unfounded in many particulars. But it is not arrogant or fatuous. There are plenty of things that worry people in Washington, and worry them deeply. It is simply a reversion to an ancient and healthy U.S. tradition.

Compare President Johnson's definition of his Great Society to Count de Toqueville on the American character in 1840. Here is Mr. Johnson: "It is the excitement of becoming—always becoming, trying, probing, failing, resting and trying again—but always trying and always gaining."

And here is de Toqueville on the American: "Forever seeking, forever failing to rise again, often disappointed, but not discouraged, he tends unconsciously towards that unmeasured greatness so indistinctly visible at the end of the long track."

Canadian Policy Affected

Changes Are in the Air

By HOWARD GREEN
Former Secretary of State for External Affairs

MAJOR changes may be taking place these days in the foreign policies of several important nations. The two areas involved are Europe and the Far East.

Almost daily we read reports to the effect that President Johnson is not interested in foreign affairs and is devoting most of his time to domestic problems. This may be true in so far as Europe is concerned but Asia is in a different category. I find it very hard to believe that he is not greatly worried by events taking place in Southeast Asia—namely in Viet Nam and Laos.

Another indication that the Americans may have decided to focus attention on their own domestic affairs is the action of Senator Fulbright in announcing that he will no longer take the responsibility for getting aid to less-developed countries through the Senate.

He is chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, a former Rhodes Scholar at Oxford University and is well known for his enlightened views. He is not the type to evade responsibility. His change of attitude may well reflect a decision in Washington to reduce American activity abroad.

Possibly the United States government has reached the conclusion that Europe is now in a position to direct its own affairs. Certainly President de Gaulle of France is convinced this is the case. His policy announcements at a press conference held just this month make that perfectly clear.

For example he advocated letting Europeans negotiate for the reunification of Germany and asserted that "it is only through Europeans a solution can be found to a question which will always remain a European one." Obviously he wants to reduce American influence on the continent.

He also advocated a return to the gold standard which would mean a drastic change in the world monetary system and would reduce French reliance on the American dollar and the British pound. There is no doubt whatever that he will do his best to prevent domination of Europe by the two English-speaking countries.

The Americans have favored an Atlantic Community comprising their country, Britain, Canada and the nations of Western Europe. Under intense opposition from President de Gaulle the prospects for such a union are rapidly fading away. It is understandable that there must be some change in American policy.

It just may be that President Johnson is following a very wise course in stressing domestic affairs at this juncture and letting the European countries work out their own policies. In the meantime American power prevents Communist aggression in that part of the world.

Around the globe in Southeast Asia there seems to have been a change also in United States policy and possibly in that of the Soviet Union. In both cases such change is not in the nature of a withdrawal but rather of more direct involvement.

Evidently the Americans have decided to hit the North Vietnamese in their own country whenever attacks are made on South Viet Nam. They did this once before when an American naval vessel was attacked in the Gulf of Tonkin off the coast of North Viet Nam.

In addition they have bombed routes through Laos which are used by Communists infiltrating into South Viet Nam from the north. I expect the policy will continue to be one of inflicting reprisals on the north for attacks in the south.

Strangely enough the recent Communist attack was made while Premier Kosygin of the Soviet Union was visiting Hanoi, the capital of North Viet Nam. Was this an attempt to involve Russia directly in the war or was it just a coincidence? One wonders.

Hitherto the Soviet Union has been careful to keep its distance from these Asiatic hot spots of Viet Nam and Laos. The Chinese have been more in evidence. Does the new premier's visit mean that Russia's policy has been changed and that she now intends to confront the United States in the area? Or is the visit merely an attempt to wear North Viet Nam away from Red China? The answer to these questions is of great importance to the United States.

It is also of direct interest to Canada because she serves as a member of the three-nation truce supervisory commissions in Viet Nam and Laos. Furthermore if the United Nations calls for a peace-keeping force Canada would be one of the first invited to participate.

Obviously changes are in the air—both in Europe and in Asia, and we are bound to be affected. It is not too early for us to begin thinking of the changes that will be necessary in Canadian policy.

Washington Calling

The President and the Press

By MARQUEN CHODEN

TO the man on whose shoulders rests the fearful burden of the U.S. presidency the world has quite a different look than it has to his critics in the press. He sees it with a full knowledge of the flow of intelligence across his desk day after day.

Since the press cannot know all he knows, speculation on the danger points and the course to be followed is an added hazard. In the growing dispute between the president and the fourth estate this is Mr. Johnson's response to his critics. The latest crisis in Viet Nam could serve as a footnote on the limits

Names in the News

Old Rancher Battled Army, U.S.

ALAMAGORDO, N.M.—John Prather, a 51-year-old rancher who fought both the U.S. Army and the internal revenue service to a standstill to keep his land from becoming part of a missile range, has died.

Prather gained attention in the 1950s when he armed himself with a rifle and walked past army guards and held fast against condemnation proceedings.

A federal court had condemned 28,000 acres of Prather's land to permit expansion of the McGregor missile range.

After a truce, Prather then defied the internal revenue service, which wanted to collect taxes on the $108,985 a federal court had awarded Prather for the land. The $108,985 cheque has remained uncashed in an Albuquerque bank.

Prather said he defied the federal government because he couldn't understand "how a man could sell his birthright."

QUEBEC—Mr. Justice Georges-Rene Fournier of Quebec Superior Court has postponed the date of execution of Leopold Dan until next June 25. Dan, convicted of the capital murder of 13-year-old Pierre Marquis of Quebec City, was to have gone to the gallows Feb. 13.

WASHINGTON — President Johnson announced a state department shakeup that puts his old friend Thomas C. Mann in the No. 3 spot now held by Averell Harriman as undersecretary for economic affairs.

Mann, now assistant secretary for inter-American affairs, will be succeeded by Jack Wood Vanecko, now ambassador to Panama. Harriman will become ambassador-at-large.

LONDON — Queen Elizabeth has arrived back in London from her state visits to Ethiopia and the Sudan. Prince Philip left from the Sudan for a six-week tour of Far East and Australia.

YUBA CITY, Calif.—Roy Joseph Travis, 26, of Vancouver, B.C., suspected of smuggling heroin from Mexico to Vancouver, was arrested after he landed his single-engine plane at the airport here and charged with possession of 18 ounces of the narcotic. Officers estimated the value of the heroin at $125,000.

VANCOUVER—A contempt of court conviction against Crown prosecutor David Vernon was quashed in Supreme Court by Mr. Justice Munroe. The judge ordered a $200 fine imposed against Vernon be repaid. Magistrate D. M. Nicholson of Hanes ruled Vernon in contempt Dec. 22 after Vernon refused to prosecute a case which, he said, was completely unexpected and new to him and for which he had no time to prepare.

thought to have been sliced into a number of small pieces, in the dumps and sewers of the city.

A potential clue to unblock at least some of the mystery was a lighter bearing the initials C.A.R. found in the hotel room of Walter A. Emerick, 38. He was dead. A 22-calibre pistol lay near his body.

He was the key, or so police thought, to the strange case that has puzzled officers since Monday.

It all started when a maid at the Gunter Hotel saw Emerick wrapping a large bundle in newspapers. She said he put his finger to his lips, silencing her, and walked out. The maid then saw the blood-spattered room.

PRINTS FOUND

The only clues in the room were bits of a woman's hair, a lipstick-smudged cigar butt and a pair of stockings.

Emerick had rented the room. His fingerprints were found on the room's bathtub, dresser, on chairs, the walls, floor and carpet.

Police put out a state-wide search for Emerick. They found him in another San Antonio hotel—dead.

MENTAL PATIENT

He had registered under the name of Douglas Ashley. The name is that of an escaped mental patient once sentenced to death for shooting and then burning a Houston man.

Emerick shot himself when police tried to break into his room. The only clue they found was the initial lighter. They don't know whether it belonged to a man or woman.

CHECK GIRLS

Authorities were going over a list of Emerick's known girl friends as well as missing person lists.

Police were sure there was a body. Bexar county medical examiner Dr. Ruben Santos said the blood found in the hotel room was definitely human, the hair definitely a woman's, and the blood in the room was more than a person could lose and live.

Police said Emerick, wanted for forgery, checked into the hotel Feb. 2. A woman was seen with him several times, but no one knew who she was.

GLASGOW — Navy frogmen searched the Gareloch near here and police were called in to investigate the disappearance of Cmdr. Peter Fickling, 42, a British submarine officer who worked with the U.S. Polaris-carrying squadron.

VANCOUVER — Mrs. E. Morley of Vancouver is in satisfactory condition in hospital here after being stabbed in the neck by a man who came to her home, produced a knife and demanded money. She said the man slashed her in the neck when she told him she didn't have any money.

OTTAWA — Judge Rene Lippe has been promoted to chairman of the federal maritime union trusteeship and a top Canadian Labor Congress organizer. Lippe was named to fill a vacant spot on the three-man board of trustees. Judge Lippe, 53, succeeds Mr. Justice Victor Dryer of Vancouver who resigned as chairman Dec. 15. Taking over the Montreal judge's trustee post will be Joseph MacKinnon, 54, national director of organization for the CLC and a veteran of 28 years in the labor movement.

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson says that while there is danger of the Viet Nam situation escalating into a large-scale war, there is also some danger in hurried negotiations. He said an ill-prepared conference could result in turning South Viet Nam over to the northern regime.

Mr. Williston said the decision pulled the B.C. economy "out of a nosedive and drove it upward to prosperity."

Assurances that hydro electricity would be available in north central B.C. triggered a chain reaction of spectacular development in the forest and mining industries, he told a joint meeting of the Electric Service League of B.C. and the Vancouver Electric Club. Mr. Williston credited T. G.

Maritime Trustees Get New Chief, Member

We Are Pleased to Have Done the LANDSCAPING and ROCK WORK for the Grounds of CHARTER HOUSE PETER KIMOFF LANDSCAPERS GR 9-5523

OTTAWA (UPI) — Labor Minister Allan MacEachen named Judge Rene Lippe chairman of the maritime trustees Friday and brought in a new man to bring the board to full strength. Named was Canadian Labor Congress official Joseph MacKenzie, 54, a union veteran once fired for union activities. The MacEachen announcement is said to confirm the government's intention to keep the trustees operating despite criticism of one of the members.

You Are Cordially Invited To Inspect The Magnificent New Charter House

Victoria's Newest High-rise overlooking scenic Strait of Juan de Fuca, the Olympic Mountains and beautiful Beacon Hill Park.

We at Charter House have incorporated the elements of comfort, natural surroundings, privacy and good taste into the home we have designed for you. So that you will enjoy peace, the kind of serenity that comes from contact with nature, we have chosen a site overlooking the Strait of Juan de Fuca, the Olympic Mountains and the Inner Harbour.

You are strategically located to escape the bustle of traffic, yet are only a moment's ride from the heart of the city.

In matters of taste, Charter House aims at inherent dignity. The entrance, lobby and corridors provide exactly the right touch of sophistication and smartness. Interiors are designed for elegance, efficiency and comfort, to show you at your best.

Charter House is yours, yours alone. It is so situated to take the most advantage of the spectacular scenery found only in Victoria. The Olympic Mountains, Strait of Juan de Fuca, Sooke Hills, Beacon Hill Park and Downtown Victoria are all yours to enjoy in the leisure of your own living room.

Hallways are spacious and bright, broadloomed throughout and serviced by two modern, high-speed elevators. Your own private terrace overlooking the sea becomes your own backyard for lounging, sun bathing or barbecues. Only a few steps from your door is a large swimming pool for swimming or sunning.

Though it is our creation, Charter House is intended for a single purpose—to delight you, to make an enchanting home for you.

France to Play Lone Role

PARIS (Reuters)—A French finance ministry spokesman said Friday France considers itself withdrawn from the gold exchange standard system, and all its new foreign currency earnings will be converted into gold. The statement replied to a question about the significance of Finance Minister Valéry Giscard d'Estaing's statement Thursday.

The spokesman said the decision does not mean France will abruptly convert its current dollar reserves—estimated at $1,378,000,000—to gold.

"We shall soon begin the gradual conversion of our reserves without inconveniencing our friends and allies."

He added that France is confident other countries soon will follow suit.

In a lecture Thursday, the finance minister announced France's unilateral decision to pay all its foreign trading deficits in gold in the future.

President de Gaulle called last week for a return to the gold-only standard as an international currency guarantee, instead of the current gold exchange standard system, under which dollars and the pound sterling count with gold for settling international debts. France thus is the first Government since the 1945 Bretton Woods gold exchange agreement to pay its balance-of-payments debts in gold.

Strachan Remarks 'Unfactual'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A forest industry spokesman said Friday remarks by Robert Strachan, New Democratic Party leader, about the industry are "completely unfounded by any standards and are unfactual."

L. L. G. Bentley, chairman of the Council of Forest Industries of British Columbia, representing the majority of coast forest companies, said the entire industry resents Mr. Strachan's remarks in the legislature Monday.

UNDERSTATEMENT

He said Mr. Strachan's statements on stumpage "grossly understate the contribution of the forest industry to provincial revenues."

Mr. Strachan was critical of stumpage rates charged by the provincial government, saying that fees have declined while the industry expanded and that the industry was not contributing what it should in taxes.

Mr. Bentley said this statement "completely overlooks the fact that stumpage is related to prices of forest products and that prices were lower in 1963 than in 1952," the periods in which the NDP chief made his comparisons.

TAX INCREASE

He said Mr. Strachan's figures tend to suggest that the industry's contribution to provincial revenues has not increased in proportion to the increase in timber harvested.

"In fact, taxes on the industry have increased enormously in relation to the timber cut and its sales value," Mr. Bentley said.

$60,000 Boathouse Flops

OTTAWA (CP) — All nine members of the Northwest Territories Council agree there is something wrong with the community laundry and bathhouse at Tuktoyaktuk.

The bathhouse — actually equipped with showers, not baths, and electric washing machines — was built by the federal government in the fall of 1962 at a cost of about $60,000, but it is still not in use.

Why? asked Councillor Lyle Trimble at the council's current session.

R. J. (Bud) Orange, northern affairs agent for the western Arctic area around "Tuk," was called on to explain the situation.

"For reasons that I do not know, a freezing problem in the bathhouse itself was immediately encountered," he said.

The contractor went back to the outpost on the shores of the Arctic Ocean and "fixed up" the freezing problem. Then, it was discovered that there was not enough power to operate the washing machines.

POWER BOOSTED

The power supply was increased last summer, but there was another hitch.

"We are now faced with a problem in the water supply," Mr. Orange added.

"Frankly, we don't have the staff or the facilities in Tuktoyaktuk to provide adequate water for the power house."

Wilfred Brown, deputy territorial commissioner, commented: "In other words, there was something wrong with the planning somewhere."

"There was something wrong, period," Mr. Trimble replied.

Hawrelak Fails to Halt Hearing of Ouster Plea

CALGARY (CP) — Mayor William Hawrelak of Edmonton failed Friday in his bid to prevent further hearing of an application to remove him from office.

Three judges, headed by Chief Justice Bruce Smith of Alberta Supreme Court, dismissed an appeal by Mayor Hawrelak against a ruling in which Chief Justice C. C. McLaurin asserted his jurisdiction to hear the application.

The application, filed in Edmonton by Dr. Roy L. Anderson of Edmonton, alleged Mayor Hawrelak had lost his right to sit on city council because his business interests involving the city were a breach of the City Act.

Wall Street Recovers From Jitters

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market recovered partially Friday from sharp losses taken Thursday amid jitters about the Viet Nam crisis.

The Dow Jones industrial average which Thursday fell 11.04, advanced 6.58 to 883.17.

Fourteen of the 15 most-active stocks advanced. The only loser was Chrysler, which ended at 56 1/2.

Texas Gulf Sulphur was the most active stock, spurring 3 1/2 to 65 1/2 on 164,700 shares.

Among Canadian issues, Canadian Pacific gained 1 1/2 points and Dome Mines was up 1 1/2. International Nickel tumbled on 1/2. Aluminum and Hudson Bay Mining 1/2.

Prices were generally higher on the American Stock Exchange. Up small fractions were Canadian Traction, Canadian Javelin, Scurry Rainwater and Jupiter Corp.

MONTREAL (CP)—All sections except banks and oils rose and partially offset Thursday's losses in moderate trading Friday on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges.

CPR added 1 1/2 to 66 1/2 and Bell Telephone and Trans Mountain Pipe Line each added 1/2 to 61 1/2 and 21 1/2 respectively.

Industrials were up 1 1/2 to 1,681. Consolidated Textile rose a point to 28 and Du Pont added 1/2 to 35 1/2.

Papers were also up, gaining

Judge Chides RCMP

Reports in French Needed

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Chief Justice Frederic Dorn said Friday the RCMP should have facilities to make reports in French as well as English.

He said he may have comments to make on this subject when he reports to the federal cabinet on his inquiry into allegations of bribery and political pressure by ministerial aides.

His comment came during a day in which the inquiry switched to English and, at times, to questioning of a witness in French and replies by the witness in English.

LANGUAGE PROBLEM

The language problem arose when RCMP counsel Norman Mathews, the only one among the score of lawyers who speaks only English, asked that Inspector J. R. R. Carriere delay replies to questions until the translation system relayed the full question in English. He might want to raise objections to the question.

Ross Drouin, Conservative party counsel, offered to switch to English for his questioning and this practice was adopted by several other lawyers. Later, Insp. Carriere was questioned in French and replied in English. He had replied during earlier testimony in French.

WONDERED ALOUD

At one point, after several objections from Mr. Mathews, Mr. Drouin wondered aloud whether the lawyers hadn't better switch back to French.

Mr. Mathews said Insp. Carriere had originally decided to testify in English at Friday's hearings. But "for some reason he's decided against it."

IN ENGLISH

Another language incident occurred when Paul Jolin, New Democratic party counsel, questioned Insp. Carriere about a report—Insp. Carriere called it "top secret"—in RCMP Commissioner G. B. McClellan. It said the report was being forwarded in English as the commissioner instructed.

Insp. Carriere said this didn't mean the commissioner ordered him to report in English, only that he was to submit a report. The report was in English because Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne on whom the report was made chose English as the language in which to be questioned.

WINE, PREFERABLE

Insp. Carriere said it was "wise and preferable" to use the language with which the person being questioned is most familiar. Mr. Lamontagne is perfectly bilingual.

Mr. Jolin suggested the RCMP makes it practically impossible for officers to make reports in French.

WRONG COMMISSION

Mr. Mathews protested that Mr. Jolin was trying to "stir up something. If so, Mr. Jolin was before the wrong commission, he should take that before another commission (the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism) if he wanted to go into that.

New Writ Sought For Rivard

MONTREAL (CP) — Defence lawyers for Lucien Rivard today filed a new writ of habeas corpus in a bid to avoid his extradition to the United States. The appeal is scheduled to be heard Feb. 19 by the Quebec Court of Appeal.

A previous bid to avoid extradition through a similar habeas corpus writ was rejected here Jan. 29 by Judge Francois Caron.

A central figure in the Dorn hearing into alleged bribery and coercion among federal government officials, Rivard is wanted in the U.S. on a charge of conspiracy in connection with narcotics smuggling.

He has been held without bail here awaiting a ruling on the extradition proceedings. In his judgment rendered Jan. 29, Judge Caron said there was overwhelming evidence against Rivard and that he saw no reason to reverse previous decisions favoring extradition.

Chief Justice Dorn said he may have something to say about that in his report.

Mr. Jolin said the inquiry should find out whether the RCMP has the means to question witnesses in French.

Chief Justice Dorn remarked that, if the force doesn't now have the means, it soon will have.

RULING PLANNED

As the hearing opened, Chief Justice Dorn announced he will rule Tuesday whether further testimony will be heard from Raymond Denis, a former executive accused by Mr. Lamontagne of offering him $20,000 July 14 to bring about the release on bail of Lucien Rivard.

Mr. Lamontagne is counsel for the United States government in extradition proceedings aimed at sending Rivard to Laredo, Texas, on charges Rivard was a key figure in a huge international narcotics smuggling conspiracy.

DENIS DENIAL

Mr. Denis has denied Mr. Lamontagne's accusation. He was executive assistant to then Immigration Minister Tremblay at the time of the alleged bribe offer.

Mr. Drouin has proposed testing Denis' credibility by recalling him to testify about his connection with the immigration case of American millionaire Harry Stonehill who was expelled from Canada.

TO BE CALLED

Commission counsel Andre Desjardins said Mr. Tremblay, who was shifted to the portfolio of postmaster - general Friday, and Justice Minister Pavau will be called to testify and possibly officials of the immigration and justice department. He said one may be Deputy Justice Minister E. A. Dreidger.

Insp. Carriere quoted Mr. Lamontagne as saying to the RCMP Aug. 11 he had advised Antoine Geoffrion of the Montreal law firm of Geoffrion, Prud'homme about Denis' offer, that would end the matter.

He said Mr. Lamontagne told him his employer, Mr. Geoffrion, advised against taking any action and that, if further pressure was put on Mr. Lamontagne, he (Geoffrion) would take action.

Insp. Carriere said he asked Mr. Lamontagne why he waited from July 14 until Aug. 11 to tell the RCMP. Mr. Lamontagne had replied he thought that, having rejected Denis' offer, that would end the matter.

Setting up a loan is a serious business. It's wise to make sure you get the right type of loan for your personal situation. Perhaps a combined first mortgage on your home is the answer; or a second mortgage might provide the immediate cash you need; or again a carefully planned personal loan may be the best solution.

A modern C.A.C. combined first mortgage will allow you up to 83½% of the appraised value of your existing or proposed home. A second mortgage with C.A.C. can give you up to 85% of the appraised value. And it's repayable over any period up to 15 years... open from commencement without penalty. A modern C.A.C. personal loan gives you the cash you need now on a plan personally tailored to your requirements.

Setting up a loan is a serious business. It's wise to make sure you get the right type of loan for your personal situation. Perhaps a combined first mortgage on your home is the answer; or a second mortgage might provide the immediate cash you need; or again a carefully planned personal loan may be the best solution.

A modern C.A.C. combined first mortgage will allow you up to 83½% of the appraised value of your existing or proposed home. A second mortgage with C.A.C. can give you up to 85% of the appraised value. And it's repayable over any period up to 15 years... open from commencement without penalty. A modern C.A.C. personal loan gives you the cash you need now on a plan personally tailored to your requirements.

Ex-NHL Officials Hold Their Conference

By SCOTT BUTTON
TORONTO (UPI) — Three former National Hockey League referees and a linesman held a press conference in a downtown Toronto hotel today to air their beefs about the handling of NHL officials, but failed to win the unanimous sympathy of those in attendance.

Eddie Powers, Dalt McArthur, Jack Mehlenbacher and George Hayes were the principals in the stormy affair and they directed their criticisms at NHL president Clarence Campbell and referee-in-chief Carl Voss.

The quartet presented copies of letters signed by linesman Hayes and Walter Atanas that supported McArthur's claim that he had been asked by Voss to "call only good penalties to the Rangers" before the game March 22, 1963 between the Rangers and the Boston Bruins.

Hayes' letter in part read: "Referee-in-chief Carl Voss came into the referees' room and instructed referee Dalton McArthur that any penalties to Rangers had to be good ones, as they were battling Detroit for the fourth playoff berth.

"He (Voss) also said Boston wasn't going anywhere and he didn't want to hurt New York's chances."

Atanas said in his letter: "Mr. Voss said that Boston wasn't going any place and to watch the way he (McArthur) called the penalties on New York."

New York won the game 4-3 and McArthur needed police protection to leave the rink.

McArthur said about the game: "Don McKenney (of Boston) came up to me and said 'What are you trying to do—throw the game?' I should have given him 10 minutes but I couldn't because that's about what it amounted to."

McArthur refused to speculate if his officiating in the 1963 game cost Boston the game. However, he said, "What I didn't call on New York affected the game. Boston lost chances for a man advantage."

He said his interpretation of a "good penalty" was "everyone in the rink can see—the kind you just can't let go."

rapid turnover of officials in the NHL and suggested it would "make any business wonder what was wrong with management."

Both he and Mehlenbacher said they would like the referee-in-chief to tell off the league governors or club owners if they criticized the referees, rather than calling the referees on the carpet or intimidating them into even- ing up penalties.

The variety of complaints aired by the quartet did not completely win over the gathering. Comments were the charges—would be of greater importance if made by men now employed in the league.

CASE WEAKENS
The former officials were asked why they waited so long before revealing the events that preceded the Boston-New York game March 22, 1963.

The answer was basically they wanted to keep their jobs.

An excerpt from a letter sent by Hayes to Campbell Aug. 23, 1964, aroused some comment among those at the conference.

The last sentence of the letter read: "If my contract is not renewed, I will be forced to ask for an investigation of the game in question," referring to the Boston-New York encounter.

It was suggested to Hayes that this statement was "almost a form of blackmail" and not in keeping with the four men's announced purpose of the conference—to help hockey.

July 30 in Edmonton

Early Football Start

OTTAWA—Canadian professional football opens its new season in Edmonton on July 30, earliest date ever.

Announcement was made by commissioner Sydney Halpern following completion of the annual Canadian Football League meeting Friday night. Also resolved before the meeting ended were interlocking gate splits and some new rule changes. It took until midnight before business at hand had been cleaned up.

Western and Eastern Conference clubs will play the same number of interlocking games as in 1964—each club playing teams in the other conference once.

VANCOUVER ON AUG. 7
Other opening dates set were: Calgary, Aug. 2; Winnipeg, Aug. 4; Saskatchewan and Toronto, Aug. 6; B.C. Lions and Hamilton, Aug. 7; Ottawa, Aug. 12, and Montreal, Aug. 18.

After some haggling, it was agreed that the gate split for interlocking games would see the visiting team get 20 per cent with the total never to exceed $30,000. Western clubs had held out for 75-25 before yielding this point.

Originally, Western clubs were compensated at the rate of 75 cents for every ticket between the goal lines. Later, they accepted a straight 6 per cent of gross.

BIG SWITCH
Most significant of the rules changes has to do with offensive pass interference. Believing that loss of the ball was too severe a penalty, the rules committee changed the rule to make it a straight 10-yard penalty regardless of where the penalty is incurred.

There will no longer be a five-minute signal from referees at the end of the second and fourth quarters. The three-minute signal remains, and after it sounds the clock will stop with each play and resuming only after the referee spots the ball for the next play.

EASE PENALTIES
Thrown out is the 15-yard penalty for contacting the kicker. Instead, the club that was punting gets an automatic first down at the point of scrimmage.

Also thrown out is the rule which called for clubs to make quick sweater changes when they moved a back up to the line or vice versa. Now an end may be moved up to the line of scrimmage or an end switched to the backfield without being required to change numbers.

Lions Add Two Ends

VANCOUVER—B.C. Lions Friday announced the signing of their fourth new import for the 1965 Canadian Football League season.

Latest newcomer is Fred Shaffer, 27-year-old, 230-pound defensive end from Whitworth College in Spokane who was rated by many observers as the best man at his position on the Pacific Coast last season. He was one of the last cuts made by Denver Broncos of the American Football League last season.

The Lions, trying to strengthen at tight end, also announced the signing of Stan Napper from Western Kentucky State.

The amended rule now requires the five ineligible receivers to line up side by side nearest the ball and the designated pass receivers must be on each end of the line of scrimmage.

Penalty for an ineligible pass receiver and for illegal substitution has been lowered to 10 yards from 15. Minor offences on third down such as officials and illegally putting the ball into play will cost five yards instead of 10.

Shelved was a recommendation to permit blocking on punt returns.

Island Meet Brings in Record Field

A record entry of 160 competitors will make Cordova Bay Badminton Club a busy spot next week during the annual Vancouver Island open badminton championships.

More than 300 matches will be played, with play starting Monday. Competition through Wednesday will be in the handicap and junior divisions. Seeded players swing into action Thursday.

CHAMP COMING
A strong mainland contingent will be headed by Canadian men's singles champion Wayne Macdonnell and includes Bert Fergus, Bruce Rollick and Mimi Nielson. From Seattle will come Joyce Jones and Carolyn Jensen.

Bob Hunt, Ed Hedley and Lloyd Park are some of the locals who will be competing. Not participating this year are defending women's singles champion Tina Barlaassa, and Ed Patterson, who teamed with brother Rolf last year to win the doubles title.

Farell's statement said in part: "In 1959 I was assigned to referee a playoff game between Hershey and Buffalo in the American Hockey League at the time Hershey was leading the final series three games to one. The fifth game was being played in Buffalo before a capacity crowd."

IN AHL, TOO?
"Approximately 15 minutes before game time, Carl Voss, the referee-in-chief, entered the officials' dressing room and called me aside. He advised me if there were going to be any penalties called against Buffalo, they were to be good ones."

Farell said he "ignored" the instructions and called the game as he saw it.

Powers, an NHL referee for almost seven seasons before he resigned, objected strongly to referees being intimidated into "evening up penalties."

He said after a game in Toronto he has had owners tell him: "We got the last three penalties, what are you doing?"

NEW ONE
Mehlenbacher, whose contract was not renewed after the 1963-64 season, related an incident that happened to him several years ago when Chicago Black Hawks were having trouble winning games and drawing fans.

"I was told to look after Chicago," Voss told me never to call a double penalty on Chicago," he said.

"The four men, however, all seemed reluctant about using the word 'manipulate' which Powers had used in earlier charges."

Hayes, an NHL linesman for 19 seasons, suggested he was not fired because of his failure to take an eye test, but because of letters he wrote in connection with the McArthur incident in Boston.

Powers pointed out the City Football Body All Set to Boost Stadium Campaign

The campaign by local sportsmen for the construction of a municipal stadium using Greater Victoria's share of the 1967 federal centennial grant has begun to roll with the production of a report by the Victoria Canadian Football Union.

The report, which advocates joint-action by the four municipalities to establish a 5,000-seat floodlit stadium with track facilities and room to expand to a 20,000 capacity, will be presented at the next meeting of the Centennial Stadium Committee.

Concern over Greater Victoria's need for a modern enclosed park came to a head last October when the venerable Royal Athletic Park was partially destroyed by fire.

Although the City of Victoria has since announced that Royal Athletic Park will be reconstructed (demolition of the damaged portion began this week), the stadium committee feels that a re-built Athletic Park will be complementary to a new stadium. The manner in which Athletic Park will be re-built has not been decided.

Ian Stewart, president of the Victoria Canadian Football Union, said: "The federal grant provides an excellent opportunity to build a stadium. This is a money from outside the community and not just another burden for the local taxpayer."

Stewart stated that the purpose of the report prepared by his group was mainly to promote discussion within the stadium committee in order that it may come up with the best possible plan for presentation to the municipalities.

Engineer Seeking Suitable Site

Art Burgess, secretary of the stadium committee, said the group already has an engineer looking for a suitable site in the lower-Island area. "The price of land is climbing," Burgess said, "and if we are to get a stadium we must acquire a decent site within the next few years."

The stadium committee has already written to the inter-municipal centennial committee which will make the decision on what is to be done with the $450,000 federal grant.

"We asked to be allowed to present a brief regarding a stadium," Burgess said. "The inter-municipal committee replied it would be pleased to listen to us as soon as we had our brief prepared."

The stadium committee plans to prepare a detailed brief which will have the approval of all the athletic groups represented by the committee. Burgess stressed that the committee wants to see all four municipalities involved in the stadium to make it a Greater Victoria endeavor.

Tentatively, the next meeting of the stadium committee will be Feb. 22.

Pat Frumento is the committee chairman with Tillman Briggs (English rugby), Bob Hutchinson (track and field), Wallace Milligan (soccer), Gary Taylor (baseball), and Gary Taylor (football) as representatives.

'Berton Is Right, But Christ Said It Better'

Pierre Berton's accusations against organized religion in his book The Comfortable Few are seen by a Victoria minister as similar to the accusations Jesus Christ made against the established religion of his day.

"Read the 23rd chapter of Matthew's Gospel for Jesus' verdict on the established religion of his day. The accusations are similar — only the language is different, more biting and contemptuous," Rev. William J. Klempa, Ph.D., minister of Gorge Presbyterian Church, said in a sermon last Sunday.

"Not even the bitterest enemies of the church — or a critical outsider like Mr. Berton — can approach the fury of Christ's denunciation."

Dr. Klempa referred to Mr. Berton's work as a fine book. "I am a little disturbed by the negative reactions to the book by some fellow clergies. I also have the uneasy feeling that one or two who have criticized it have not even read the book."

"I hope that those who call themselves Christians will listen humbly to what Mr. Berton has to say. Mr. Berton, in spite of what many churchmen will say, is an intelligent and perceptive man."

"He says many of the things that theologians in the church have been saying."

"It is an indication of the influence of the Christian faith that Mr. Berton uses Christian criteria as standards by which he judges the work of the church today."

The Presbyterian minister feels Berton "leaves much to be desired" in his discussions of the revolution in sex, the role of preaching and the place of dogma.

"Mr. Berton's great weakness — at least from the Christian's point of view — is that he fails to see that the church is a divine as well as a human institution."

"He points to contradictions and weaknesses and is inclined to think that the church will pass away."

"He does not see that the church has inner springs of life flowing from its head, Jesus Christ."

Dr. Klempa said that Christ's mission of redemption has been and is successful in transforming countless individuals.

"And also within society as a whole we can observe how the leaven of the Gospel has worked to transform human motives and institutions. Along with Peter many have said: 'Lord, to whom shall I go? Thou hast the words of eternal life.'"

"A great number — Yes. But what have they done and what are we doing to save the world?"

"It is true that many find a refuge and consolation in Christianity. But exactly what does that prove?"

"We are living in a world that walks in the shadow of death. Most of us have experienced the ravages of at least one if not two world wars and we look forward with anxiety to an even greater cataclysm hoping to be saved from it, yet not quite sure that we will be saved."

"If ever the world needed salvation, it is now. We all know it, though often we try not to think about it."

"Does anyone really believe that Christianity as it is represented by the churches today can save the world?"

"Here I think we must listen humbly to the growing multitude of thoughtful and earnest voices which answer, 'No.'" the status-seekers and respectability-hunters, of the deadwood who enjoy the club atmosphere, of the ecclesiastical hangers-on and the comfort-seekers."

"Once the church becomes the most uncomfortable institution in the community," continued Berton in words quoted by the minister, "only those who really matter will stick with it. At this point, one would expect the church to come back to those basic principles of love, faith and hope that have made martyrs out of men."

"I agree," said Dr. Klempa. "The church will become smaller, it will not be established, but it will again become a very effective instrument of the gospel and its transforming power."

'Christ Broke Drink's Grip'

By IAN ARROL

This is the first report in a new series.

Each Sunday I plan going to a different church and meeting a different minister.

Last Sunday I attended the evening service at the Salvation Army Citadel, 757 Pandora, and Wednesday I met the commanding officer, Capt. Don McMillan, in his office.

In addition to two prayer meetings, at 9:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m., and two open air meetings, at 10:15 a.m. and 6:45 p.m., there are two main services — 11 a.m. Holiness Meeting and 7:30 p.m. Salvation Meeting.

I went to the Salvation Meeting. Arriving at the citadel at 7:30 p.m., I saw that the congregation was already there, about 200, many with bonnets and caps, in a room which can accommodate 350, and usually does Sunday mornings.

The most arresting sight is the blood and fire crest of the army emblazoned on the wall back of the pulpit.

The crest gives the message: "Salvation through the blood of Christ and the fire of the holy spirit."

Later Captain McMillan explained:

The crossed swords represent the fight against sin. "S" is for the savior, the cross for his sacrifice. The radiation around the circle is the sun of righteousness and the crown on top, the crown of life and the reward in heaven."

The first hymn sung Sunday night was a Charles Wesley one, the chorus of which goes:

We have no other argument,
We want no other plea,
It is enough that Jesus died,
And that he died for me.

The captain talked between verses, sometimes to read the verse, sometimes to give a little sermonette based on the words.

"I am so wonderfully saved from sin,
Jesus, my savior, abides within;
And, by the Cross, I am crown'd with glory to His Name!"

Ex-Servants Elect W. G. Stone

W. G. Stone, 914 Dale, has been elected president of Federal Superannuates in Victoria.

The group of retired federal civil servants elected W. R. McLaren, 908 Cook, vice-president, and H. A. Kallens, 1533 Balmoral, secretary-treasurer.

The executive committee consists of Mary Roberts, A. L. Robinson, Fred Galsolve, J. H. Hedley, C. P. Wall and Godfrey Argue.

At its recent meeting the group heard reports from two delegates who presented a brief to the special committee considering the Canada pension plan.

NDP Plans Meeting For Feb. 22

Recommendations to be presented to the provincial convention of the New Democratic Party will be heard at a membership meeting of Victoria NDP constituency associations Feb. 22.

All resolutions for the convention must be brought to the Feb. 22 meeting at Union Centre.

Following the provincial section of the meeting, the association will adjourn and reconvene at the federal riding association.

It will then elect officers and discuss federal election plans.

Capt. McMillan

Said one man during the testimonial period:

"I was a drunk. I was drunk when I came into this hall three years ago. This one thing I know — Christ broke the fetters of alcohol."

Another said: "It was 37 years ago that I knelt on the pavement board and I testify today that Christ will save and will keep."

The congregation joined the minister in inviting any one there who might not know the Christian life to give of himself as all sang:

I have not much to give thee Lord
For that great love which may be mine,
But what I have is Thine.

After the service, those behind and beside us shook hands — one of them was 98, a man who had joined the Army in 1888.

"But I backslid for a number of years," he said.

There are new members — recruits — there is a 10-week course in doctrine, tenets of faith and church history and army procedure, Capt. McMillan told me.

"When the recruit passes a little written test, he is then a soldier, and as such may wear the uniform, if he or she wishes."

"To be a minister — an officer — a two-year course is given at training school in Toronto. Classes are held morning, afternoon and night. In summer there is practical training."

"On graduation day, appointments are read out to the new lieutenants. They may be posted anywhere."

The wife always shares the rank of the husband. Officers must marry officers. If an officer wished to marry a member of his congregation, she would have to graduate first from training school.

Those with non-commissioned ranks are not full-time workers in the church.

"A deacon in another church would be a sergeant-major in ours."

Captain McMillan, chairman of the Scarborough ministerial association before taking up his post this year in Victoria, said 350 families belong to the citadel here.

"About 45 per cent of our membership is elderly. We have 35 in our youth council and 35 in our youth band, ages 9-16 years."

One of the projects of the very young-looking 39-year-old captain will be toward a substantial increase in youth membership and activity.

Three Dead in Caper

Soviet Air Hijacker Sentenced to Death

MOSCOW (AP) — An armed Russian who failed in an attempt to hijack a plane and fly to Turkey has been sentenced to death, the Soviet news agency Tass reported Friday.

It said the Supreme Court of the Moldavian region sentenced N. N. Gudumak, who, with G. N. Karadzhi, also armed, failed to divert an airliner when two pilots they seriously wounded fought them off and landed at Kishinev.

Kiradzhi fled into the city. Cornered in a house, he killed two policemen and was shot dead.

Gudumak apparently was captured at the airport.

Major Hit, Minor Hurt

Drivers from head-on crash on Tillicum Road near Gosper Crescent didn't exactly walk away but they escaped with comparatively minor injuries. Ronald Child, 2623 Blanshard, admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital, was reported in satisfactory condition. Russel Townsend, 624A Manchester Road, was released after treatment. — (Jim Ryan)

Richter Warns Farmers

Competition Keener

B.C. farmers are too complacent. Agriculture Minister Frank Richter warned in the legislature Friday.

This province can still sell its food and food products in overseas markets without too much effort, he said. But other countries are catching up.

"I would warn everyone, and particularly our farmers, that the world of trade is becoming more competitive every year."

The minister said he found on recent visits to Japan and South America that "we shall not long enjoy the luxury of sitting complacently waiting for eager buyers."

"There are products for which we thought the world was begging, but which are now produced in increasing quantities and improved quality elsewhere, every field of endeavor, including agriculture."

"If we are to continue to forge ahead we must be prepared to Rights Promotion Urged for B.C.

A civil rights commission for B.C. was proposed in the legislature Friday by Arthur Turner (NDP—Vancouver East).

The body would do educational and promotional work to publicize the Fair Employment Practices Act, Public Accommodation Act and Equal Pay Act, he said.

Mr. Turner said at present these pieces of legislation are ineffective because they lack "positive promotion" of the kind done in Ontario.

"In this way," the speaker said, "the government would prove that it would not countenance any interference in freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of assembly, or the right of the individual to protection of the law, without any form of discrimination."

Haunt Napoleon

PARIS (Reuters) — An 800-strong private association Friday brought suit against the French treasury, claiming 75,000,000 francs ($15,000,000) as compensation for gold alleged to have been stolen by Napoleon Bonaparte.

All the association's members are descendants of a Frenchman named Jean Thierry, who was born in 1579 and died a wealthy man in Italy.

According to Roger Hild, a lawyer who belongs to the association, 25,000,000 gold francs of Thierry's acquired wealth, then belonging to his descendants, was seized from the Zaccaria bank in Venice when Napoleon's armies entered the city in 1797.

Hild said the seizure was illegal and could not be considered a normal act of war, because Thierry was a Frenchman.

The case is expected to come to court in two weeks' time.

Magna Charta, Code Napoleon, and the Constitution of the United States are tools by which men have sought to render government revealed and democratic in place of government mysterious and autocratic.

That these tools have been blunted, obscured, abused, and ignored tells us something about the workmen abusing these tools but little or nothing about these tools in themselves. Informed men of goodwill may differ, and violently, on the use of such tools in the concrete but these same men of goodwill may aspire to close and continuing harmony on the nature and quality of such tools in the abstract. He who tastes the bitter gall of a denial of his constitutional rights tastes that gall not despite but because of the presence of an abstract tool of a Magna Charta, a Code, a Constitution when, and only when, the one affected knows, and knows well, of that abstract tool. Such tools belong not only to those peoples by whom and for whom they were forged but to those who would work to make them their own.

The distinction between the concrete and the abstract may not be overdrawn. A millennium of violating the commandment "Love Ye One Another" is a thousand years of the concrete that, in itself, may not impair that precept in the abstract. So with Magna Charta, Code Napoleon, and the Constitution of the United States. All the abuses of a thousand years add up to not one vestige of a blot upon the search for the revealed and democratic in place of the mysterious and autocratic in government.

A remorse-ridden novice bandit, who might never have been caught, was sentenced in city magistrate's court Friday to a two-year jail term following his voluntary surrender to police.

Lumber Strike Delayed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A memorandum of agreement signed Friday night has postponed "indefinitely" a strike by 167 lumber inspectors that threatened to tie up the B.C. lumber industry.

The agreement — terms of which were not disclosed — was to be voted on by the inspectors. No date was set for the vote.

SIGNED BY THREE

The memorandum of agreement was signed by J. M. Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations; Rod Beaton, president of the inspectors local of the International Woodworkers of America; and Jack Moore, regional IWA president.

The inspectors had voted to strike Tuesday to back up demands for a wage increase. They also opposed a plan by forest companies to have mill employees use the lumber grading stamp now used only by inspectors.

Saanich Vote May Include Drains Plan

Public works committee in Saanich has turned over to Saanich council several drainage projects for possible inclusion in a large capital works referendum.

Necessary future projects are now being discussed at informal meetings of council and officials, preparing the referendum for future presentation to the voters.

RECENTLY VIEWED

Drainage works in the Gordon Head, Shelbourne, and Cadboro Bay area were recently viewed on a tour of the municipality by the public works committee.

The committee discussed possibility of including the project in this year's budget, but decided to turn it over to council for possible inclusion in the referendum.

DRAINAGE PROBLEM

Drainage on Sinclair between Cadboro Bay Road and Gyro Park was also turned over to the council for discussion and possible inclusion in the capital works budget.

The committee has recommended to council remaining stages after Stage 2 of the North Shelbourne drainage project be placed in the referendum.

FOR THIS YEAR

Stage 2 of this project, at a cost of $60,000, was recommended for inclusion in this year's budget.

No decision has yet been made on when the referendum will go to the voters.

Ottawa Refuses to Extend Winter Works

The federal government has rejected a B.C. request to extend the federal-provincial winter works program through May instead of closing April 30, it was disclosed here Friday. Labor Minister Allan MacEachen said in reply to Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell's request that the program still has three months to go and municipalities should accelerate projects to meet the deadline. Mr. Campbell had informed federal authorities that extensive snows in B.C. this winter had put many municipalities behind schedule on projects already approved by Ottawa.

Mr. MacEachen replied that municipalities could hire a second shift on the projects and qualify for salary grants while providing more winter employment.

Extension Sought

BONN (Reuters) — The West German Bundestag began parliamentary action Friday to enable further prosecution for Nazi war crimes for another 10 years.

Hamburg's Mayor Paul Nervenmann declared that it was "unbearable that National Socialist murderers walk around among us."

"It would seem that while the heavy snowfall may have interfered with certain public works projects," the federal minister added, "it has at the same time been instrumental in providing additional employment opportunities through snow removal."

Mr. MacEachen said he finds it difficult to support the view that Canadian winters are seven months long and end on June 1. He added that to extend the winter employment program into the summer when job opportunities normally increase is to defeat its purpose.

Microscopic photograph of Anacystis cyanea

Diving Scientist Identifies Killer

The minute form of plant life which contributed to the death of a dozen dogs at Langford Lake has been spotted under a microscope in a biology laboratory at the University of Victoria.

The culprit has been identified as Anacystis cyanea (formerly known as Microcystis aeruginosa) by Dr. Alan P. Austin, assistant professor in the department of biology.

Dr. Austin — a scuba-diving scientist who specializes in the study of marine algae — has asked for the co-operation of residents in allowing him access to the water at Langford Lake, where he has started an intensive study of the toxic algae.

Start Library

He suggested Friday that samples of algae should be taken from lake waters throughout Vancouver Island and preserved as the start of a "library" of information on the fresh water algae here.

The blue-green algae called Anacystis cyanea consist of a large number of tiny cells gathered together in colonies which under the microscope take on unusual and interesting shapes similar to modern sculpture forms.

They are interesting but they are deadly to animals and injurious to humans.

In Other Lakes

Harmless traces of other types of toxic blue-green algae have been found in other lakes in the Greater Victoria area, said Dr. Austin.

The scientist and his wife Nona came from Malta in the Mediterranean where he was in charge of botany in the department of biology at the Royal University of Malta.

He said Friday that while the algae at Langford Lake can be removed by poisoning this would be only a temporary solution which could again upset conditions in the lake and cause further harm to wildlife there.

Complex Project

Results of his studies will not be known for some time because of the complexity of the project which is aimed at finding the cause of such prolific growth of toxic plant.

"A careful watch must be kept on the growth of the algae in the lake and in other lakes in the area, their growth and multiplication measured by counts and some data gathered on the nutrient cycles of the same lakes," said Dr. Austin.

Shops Slated on Campus

A brand new campus shopping centre will greet University of Victoria students returning to classes next fall and everyone concerned is happy.

Students have long felt the need for a conveniently located centre.

University officials are elated because the cost will be substantially less than the original estimate of $360,000.

Foster Parents Urgently Needed

By A. H. MURPHY

(First of two articles)

Victorians have been challenged to extend a hand to children in desperate need.

There is an urgent need for foster homes for children of all ages, says Mrs. B. Levitz Packford, supervisor foster homes, Family and Children's Service.

"I am throwing down the gauntlet to people in this metropolitan district. There is an instant and pressing need for people to look after children whose own families can't or won't take care of them."

If these children are not looked after — if they are not taken into someone's home — they may well end up at Brannan Lake Home for Boys or Willingdon Home for Girls, says Mrs. Packford.

"This can start a cycle in the life of the child which can lead to a complete moral breakdown. It can mean the ruin of a youngster."

"I'm not critical of the people who operate these places. I know they are overcrowded and understaffed and that they do the best they can. But the result is the same. There is little or no segregation from more experienced inmates and what the children don't know before they go in they soon pick up there."

Children, some of them disturbed, are not even given a psychiatric examination before being sent to Brannan or Willingdon, says Mrs. Packford.

There are several institutions in our own district but they are filled with younger children.

There is just no place for the troubled adolescent.

Their parents don't want them, schools don't want them and they are rejected by the community. Result is that they end up at Brannan or Willingdon."

Where do these youngsters come from and how?

Mrs. Packford says they come from three sources: parents who declare them incorrigible, schools, and family court.

"Of course, if they are referred to us by the court it is the last step of many which has earlier included expulsion, in many cases, from home and school."

"We are given a week or two to find them a home, otherwise it's probation or Brannan," she adds.

The stream of children, unfortunately, is never-ending. There may be only four or five on hand, some in juvenile detention homes at any one time, but homes, schools and courts keep churning them out.

"These children are produced by the community and they are rejected by the community. It is still a community problem to look after them and find means for their rehabilitation. This is the challenge," Mrs. Packford says.

Private foster homes are required but there is another need, says Mrs. Packford.

The idea would be to take several children, probably teenagers, into the home and operate it with help and financial aid from the agency.

While Mrs. Packford did not like the word "professional" in this context, it would be, nonetheless, a professional challenge to people who thought they had the ability.

That is for people who have the temperament and ability to make a career out of operating foster homes. These can be privately-owned homes or, if necessary, the Family and Children's Service will provide the residence.

The idea would be to take several children, probably teenagers, into the home and operate it with help and financial aid from the agency.

While Mrs. Packford did not like the word "professional" in this context, it would be, nonetheless, a professional challenge to people who thought they had the ability.

Goldstream Plunge

Two in Death Truck? RCMP Still Not Sure

The possibility two people were in a death truck found in Goldstream River Friday is being investigated by Colwood RCMP.

The body of Duncan chicken farmer Eino Olavi Suominen, 37, of 2507 Inverarity Road, was discovered in the overturned truck.

The truck went into the river from a narrow bridge. It fell 10 feet into five feet of water.

Both side windows were knocked out.

RCMP said Friday night they thought Mr. Suominen was the only occupant of the truck but they couldn't be sure.

ALONG BEAM

"Someone else could have been swept away by the water," a police spokesman said.

The truck was coming down a paved road from Goldstream campsite and started across the narrow wooden bridge.

The wheels of the truck went along a narrow beam at the side of the bridge for about two feet. Then the truck tipped to the left and plunged into the swiftly moving water.

Police believe Mr. Suominen was knocked out by the 10-foot fall.

The accident apparently occurred Thursday night. The victim's watch stopped at 11:25. Mr. Suominen's body was taken to Sand's funeral chapel in Colwood, then to Royal Jubilee Hospital for an autopsy.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said the results of the post-mortem will determine whether an inquest should be called.

Mr. Suominen was in egg and chicken farming in Duncan for five years.

He is survived by a widow and two children.

No Gas-Station Credit?

By PAT O'NEILL

No-credit signs may be displayed in 172 service stations in Greater Victoria, Sidney, Colwood and Langford after station managers meet Wednesday.

"We are trying to survive in a tough, competitive business," explains Walt Smith, chairman of the Automotive Retailers' Association.

MEETING OF ALL

He has called a meeting of all service-station operators, members and non-members of the association, in an attempt to get unanimous consent for a blanket no-credit policy.

This would mean service stations would no longer charge repairs for customers, Mr. Smith said.

"They would discontinue their accounts receivable files."

AMPLE TIME

He said if the service stations agree on this policy, customers would have ample time to apply for and receive oil company credit cards.

Mr. Smith said for some time oil companies have been encouraging service stations to take this step, and promote credit cards.

Mr. Smith said major repairs could be financed through finance companies.

REAL MONEY

Mr. Smith said service-station owners are concerned because "Money is being carried on their books, and no carrying charges are made to offset the bad accounts."

He said bad debts and bookkeeping cost amount to real money every month for the stations.

In Nanaimo, dealers discontinued all credit transactions except through credit cards or finance companies.

COMPLETE SUCCESS

"This venture has proven a complete success," said Mr. Smith.

Operators in Terrace and Kitimat, Vernon, Kelowna, Alberni and Burnaby also have ended credit, he said.

Mr. Smith said letters have been sent to all service stations on the southern part of the Island.

NOT VINDICTIVE

"We ask that it be kept in mind that this movement is not vindictive in any manner," said Mr. Smith. "Few service stations today can afford to carry accounts receivable."

The meeting will be held in Hollywood House in Victoria at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Two Other Charges Quashed

Sooke Logger Acquitted Of Criminal Negligence

A criminal negligence charge against a Sooke logger whose car ran down five men in Port Renfrew last fall was dismissed in County Court Friday.

Two other charges, careless driving and intent to wound, maim, disfigure and endanger life with his vehicle, were also dismissed against Robert Stanley Nelson, 23.

He was found guilty of impaired driving and fined $300 by Judge M. L. Tyrwhitt-Drake.

The judge said he found evidence showed "beyond a doubt" Nelson was not performing a "deliberate act" when he drove his car into a group of men following a dance at the Port Renfrew Community Hall.

REVERSE BUTTON

He said he accepted Nelson's testimony that he punched the reverse button on his car's automatic transmission selector by accident. The logger meant to back the car away from the group, he had testified earlier.

Defence counsel Jack Gatehouse told the judge in summation of the three day trial Friday that his client had testified he was "scared."

FEARED FIGHT

As Judge Drake put it, Nelson was "in fear of being involved in a fight from which he could hardly expect to emerge intact."

Nelson testified he had slept in his car outside the hall after the dance and during a later party in the downstairs apartment of community hall caretaker Donald Levy.

The five men emerged from the party about 5:30 a.m. and as Mr. Gatehouse called it, "descended on the vehicle."

"This was a militant attack," added the lawyer.

In his haste and fright the just-awakened logger punched the wrong button said the defence counsel. He pointed out that evidence showed Nelson was looking backward over his shoulder when he put the car in motion.

Moonie Trial Monday

The non-capital murder trial of Gary Allen Moonie, 21, of Saanich, charged with the Nov. 28 rifle slaying of his father, will begin in Supreme Court at 11 a.m. Monday.

The younger Moonie has been free on $5,000 bail since the death of his 41-year-old father Allen Austin Moonie three days after a shooting in the family's Saanich home.

The jury trial is expected to continue through most of the week.

Victorians Challenged to Help

Homeless Headed for Ruination

By A. H. MURPHY

(First of two articles)

Victorians have been challenged to extend a hand to children in desperate need.

There is an urgent need for foster homes for children of all ages, says Mrs. B. Levitz Packford, supervisor foster homes, Family and Children's Service.

"I am throwing down the gauntlet to people in this metropolitan district. There is an instant and pressing need for people to look after children whose own families can't or won't take care of them."

If these children are not looked after — if they are not taken into someone's home — they may well end up at Brannan Lake Home for Boys or Willingdon Home for Girls, says Mrs. Packford.

"This can start a cycle in the life of the child which can lead to a complete moral breakdown. It can mean the ruin of a youngster."

"I'm not critical of the people who operate these places. I know they are overcrowded and understaffed and that they do the best they can. But the result is the same. There is little or no segregation from more experienced inmates and what the children don't know before they go in they soon pick up there."

Children, some of them disturbed, are not even given a psychiatric examination before being sent to Brannan or Willingdon, says Mrs. Packford.

There are several institutions in our own district but they are filled with younger children.

There is just no place for the troubled adolescent.

Their parents don't want them, schools don't want them and they are rejected by the community. Result is that they end up at Brannan or Willingdon."

Where do these youngsters come from and how?

Mrs. Packford says they come from three sources: parents who declare them incorrigible, schools, and family court.

"Of course, if they are referred to us by the court it is the last step of many which has earlier included expulsion, in many cases, from home and school."

"We are given a week or two to find them a home, otherwise it's probation or Brannan," she adds.

The stream of children, unfortunately, is never-ending. There may be only four or five on hand, some in juvenile detention homes at any one time, but homes, schools and courts keep churning them out.

"These children are produced by the community and they are rejected by the community. It is still a community problem to look after them and find means for their rehabilitation. This is the challenge," Mrs. Packford says.

Private foster homes are required but there is another need, says Mrs. Packford.

The idea would be to take several children, probably teenagers, into the home and operate it with help and financial aid from the agency.

While Mrs. Packford did not like the word "professional" in this context, it would be, nonetheless, a professional challenge to people who thought they had the ability.

That is for people who have the temperament and ability to make a career out of operating foster homes. These can be privately-owned homes or, if necessary, the Family and Children's Service will provide the residence.

Nearing 30 Years

Windsors Always on the Move

By GAY PAULEY
(UPI)

It is almost 30 years since Edward VIII of England and the Empire abdicated his throne for the "woman I love."

King for a fleeting 11 months, the Duke of Windsor and his duchess today are lovers in exile for all purposes.

On that gloomy day in 1936, he told Britain and the world, "You must believe me when I tell you that I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and discharge of duties as king as I would wish to do without the help and support of the woman I love."

Now the Duke of Windsor is 70. The former Wallis Warfield Simpson is 68. He is a slight, wiry man, the wrinkles of the years deeply lining his face. The duchess looks remarkably the same as she did at her wedding. She has had several face-lifting operations and watches her figure carefully.

They are nearing 30 years of married life. It apparently has been a happy one. But it has also been a trying one. They have been royal nomads, always on the move from Paris to New York, from Palm Beach to the Riviera, living on a fabulous scale.

For a time the duke could not accept his final banishment from Britain.

When the Second World War began in 1939, the couple were living in a chateau at Cap d'Antibes. Andrew Sella, owner of the grand hotel, remembers calling on the duke at the time.

"I found him in the uniform of a British army general," Sella said. "He told me, 'I'm going to put myself at the service of my country.'"

He served, but far from the fields of battle. He was shunted off to the sunny Bahamas where from 1940 to 1945 he was governor-general of the islands. Never again did he occupy an official position.

The duchess has said that she is aware that there are people who still go on thinking — and hoping — their marriage will break up.

"We can laugh now," she said. "You have to be almost a senior citizen to remember the sensation and impact of Edward's abdication. He was then the reigning monarch of the greatest empire in the world. The rumors of his romance with the twice-divorced Mrs. Simpson of Baltimore were commonplace everywhere except in England."

When their intention to marry did become known, it was a bombshell. The fact that Mrs. Simpson had previously been married made it impossible — in the view of the church and the royal family — for her to become "Her Royal Highness." She was made a duchess but at ceremonial affairs was entitled only to the precedence of the newest duchess.

The duke regarded this as an intolerable insult to the woman he loved. He refused to take up residence in Britain unless she became "HRH." There was implacable resistance to this from the royal family and thus their exile began.

But if not a king, the duke has lived like one and the duchess like a queen.

At their 32-room mansion in Paris where they are currently staying following the duke's surgery in Houston, there is a sentry box at the gate. Their staff numbers 12 including footmen who wear special liveries designed by the duke himself. The day livery is blue with silver buttons. At night, the footmen wear black trousers and brilliant scarlet jackets with gold buttons and trim.

The mansion is in the Bois de Boulogne. It is leased from the city of Paris and was the object of a $100,000 renovation by the duchess as soon as they moved in 1953.

The first thing that strikes the visitor on entering the massive two-story entrance hall is a table in the center on which rests a somewhat battered briefcase. Across its front in small block letters are the two words in gold: "The King."

In the high hall above hangs the Duke's garter banner of Windsor which has hung for more than a century in St. George's chapel at Windsor Castle.

The entrance hall, with its 18th century Chinese screens, high-backed Louis XIII and Chinese Chippendale chairs, leads off to a long drawing room with pale blue walls. Here hang gold-framed pictures of the Duke and his mother, the late dowager Queen Mary. Marble floors are covered with Persian rugs.

The library is the "warmest" of the downstairs rooms, with a restful alcove containing a comfortable couch covered with yellow silk. It is filled with books, including his memoirs, "A King's Story," and the duchess' book, "The Heart Has Its Reasons."

The Duke and Duchess share a big studio-living room upstairs. Its cluttered, lived-in look contrasts with the ordered elegance downstairs.

The Duke cannot bring himself to throw away a newspaper and he stacks them anywhere handy, usually open to the financial section. Clippings, notes, scissors and pens are apt to be found lying about anywhere. The Duke has even had a plank placed across his bathtub to accommodate further clippings, letters, etc.

His affairs and his bedroom are "usually a mess," says the Duchess. She describes his room, quoting her late "Aunt Beattie," as "the sort of room where everything is hung up on the floor."

He inherited Sandringham and Balmoral Castles for a lifetime lease from his father. The late George VI (the Duke's brother and successor) is said to have paid Windsor between $3 and $4,000,000 for the leases.

He inherited another fortune, art treasures and jewelry from his mother, Queen Mary, who died in 1933.

Their two books sold in the millions. The publishers will not reveal the exact sales. He also received a sizable sum for the television rights to his memoirs and the Duchess' story was serialized in McCall's magazine.

On the spending side, it is estimated they put out $120,000 a year on recreation alone. The Duchess spends $30,000 to $100,000 a year on clothes.

When the Duke was hospitalized and later recuperated in Houston, their suite at the Warwick Hotel cost $83 a day. Three other rooms for their aides cost $60. The hospital charged $21 daily for a regular room. The Duke and Duchess had six.

The hotel manager said the Duke "paid us in cash and left a very substantial gift for the help."

The Duchess was irate when she heard rumors that the couple had a reputation of being "free loaders."

"I would like to state for all time that the Duke and I pay our bills," she said. "Oddly enough, the story going around that we do not only recently reached me and I was completely bowled over by it. It is beyond me how rumors like these start, since we never have any complaints from the people with whom we trade."

They entertain frequently. If it's company coming to the Paris mansion, the Duchess stays home all day conferring with Lucien, the chef, and Georges, the butler. If it's in New York, and at their favorite restaurant, the Colony, she will confer in the morning with the owner to plan the menu, flowers and all arrangements to the last detail.

They remain at the top of the social heap in Paris, Palm Beach and New York. As a result, they often have parties made up of much younger couples or, as close friends say, the Duchess goes into her "diplomatic period," and invites British ambassador Sir Pierson Dixon, American Nato ambassador Thomas Finletter and other diplomats.

Their interests range from entertaining, to gardening, to their dogs. They have five pugs now. The Duke is a golf bug and has been seen at American tournaments trailing along in "Arnie's Army."

Of his own game, he says: "Once in a while I break 90."

The Duchess remains a fashion influence. She was on the best-dressed list so often she was finally moved up to the "Hall of Fame" to take her out of the annual competition. A color was named for her, the famed "Wallis Blue" of her wedding gown now preserved at the Metropolitan Museum of New York.

She shops both Paris couture and New York for her clothes. She patronizes none of the Paris houses to the exclusion of others. Her designers include Dior, Givenchy and Yves St. Laurent in Paris, Norman Norell in New York.

Jo Hughes, a doyen of the dressmaking business at the Pinna in New York says her figure is perfectly proportioned "with good shoulders."

She is a size six and apparently stays that way by careful eating although she has said about dieting, "I watch my diet for two days and then I eat terribly."

Dear Tired: Only if you're lucky. Money and leisure time are two of the most over-rated commodities in the world. The only rich people I know who are contented are the hard-working ones. The idle rich are miserable. They can't decide whether to take pills or more Scotch to anesthetize themselves against boredom and/or anxiety.

Would you trade your wonderful husband or one of your five children for six million dollars? Of course not. Many millionaires would happily trade everything they have for a decent marriage and five wonderful kids.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Our five children are in bed and I am looking at a huge basket of clothes that I should be ironing, but I'm writing this letter to you instead.

I'm so exhausted if I walked past the bed and looked at it I'd fall asleep standing up.

My husband is a wonderful person and a terrific father. He doesn't drink or gamble and wouldn't think of spending a dime on himself. He always puts me and the children first. He works hard at his job, but every week they take something out of his pay cheque. I don't think we'll ever be a dollar ahead. In 18 years this house will be paid for, and then it will probably fall apart.

The kids, God love them, are wonderful. They help me by doing for themselves and by just being good. Never do I hear a complaint because they have to wear their cousin's hand-me-downs or because there is no money for treats or Scout uniforms.

If I could get my hair done in a beauty shop and eat dinner out once in a while I'd think I was in heaven. Is this what life was meant to be?—TIED.

Dear Tired: Only if you're lucky. Money and leisure time are two of the most over-rated commodities in the world. The only rich people I know who are contented are the hard-working ones. The idle rich are miserable. They can't decide whether to take pills or more Scotch to anesthetize themselves against boredom and/or anxiety.

Canon Robert Willis will officiate at the ceremony for five-year-old Kerry David, at left, and twins, Robin Charles and Lisa Nadene, seven months old, shown here on their mother's lap. Godparents for Kerry are Mr. and Mrs. T. Smith and Mr. Bob Cawsey. Godparents for Robin are Mr. and Mrs. Robin Clark and Mr. W. Albrecht and Lisa's godparents are Mr. and Mrs. R. Turcotte and Mrs. Albrecht. Grandparents of the children are Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Cawsey, Milnes Landing and Mr. and Mrs. C. Earp, Qualicum Beach. — (Kinsman)

Surprise Shower

A surprise shower, arranged by Mrs. R. Johnson, was held recently in honor of Miss Ivy Mancoor, at St. Martin's Church Hall, Old Avenue. Miss Mancoor, whose marriage takes place Feb. 20, is grey owl of 1st Tillicum Brownie Pack.

The shower was held in conjunction with regular meeting of the Pack and for the occasion the hall was decorated in the bridal theme. The honored guest walked down an aisle, which was formed by two lines of Brownies facing each other and holding a cupcake centred with a lighted candle, to a table containing gifts in the kitchen theme. Adding a special touch the Brownies donned make-believe veils and surrounded Miss Mancoor who was presented with an apron made by Mrs. Johnson and bearing the signature of each girl.

The bride-elect's mother, Mrs. C. A. Mancoor who is brown owl, and her sister, Miss Cheryl Mancoor, tawny owl, were also present.

Mrs. Beirnes Regent Of Navy League IODE

Mrs. C. E. Beirnes was installed as regent of Navy League Chapter, IODE, at the annual meeting Friday in the Dominion Hotel.

Mrs. Harold Menzies, regent of Florence Nightingale Chapter, installed the officers. They were Mrs. M. W. B. Smith, first vice-regent; Mrs. A. J. Sparks, second vice-regent; Mrs. E. Downing, secretary; Mrs. F. J. Nobbs, treasurer; Mrs. W. F. Mawdsley, educational secretary; Mrs. M. Chastell, standard bearer; Mrs. P. E. George, services at home and abroad; Mrs. A. J. Sparks, membership; Mrs. H. Davenport, immigration and citizenship; Mrs. T. H. English, publicity.

Councillors named for the year are Mrs. W. Brynjolfsson, Mrs. A. Stone, Mrs. T. C. Davies and Mrs. M. Keilback.

Mrs. Davenport, regent for the past three years, presided over the meeting which preceded a smorgasbord luncheon. Mrs. Elsie Lowthian, regent of Municipal Chapter, was a special guest.

In her treasurer's report, Mrs. Nobbs showed cash receipts for the year totalled $1,134.41 and included sum of $560 from the chapter's share in proceeds from the Penny Sale, plus an additional $280 from the annual IODE festival.

Disbursements for the year totalled $1,043.42 and included the sum of $265.53 for educational work and $319.88 for services at home and abroad.

Mrs. Downing, secretary, in her report said that among the highlights of the year was the provincial annual meeting of IODE in April at the Empress Hotel.

Members also tagged for Al-berni flood relief fund; turned in a number of knitted articles as well as sleepers, nighties and 10 nursery bags and blankets for children; supported the chapter's work in India, sending cash donations to Dr. Catherine Whit-ter in Indore.

Mrs. Mawdsley, educational secretary, reported sum of $285.33 had been spent on this phase of the chapter's work during 1964. A bursary for $100 was awarded to PO Alan Gillis of Rainbow Sea Cadets. An additional $30 was sent to Municipal Chapter's bursary and scholarship funds; sum of $40.53 was spent on adopted Copper Mine and Two Rivers schools, and Central Junior High in Victoria which received library books valued at $20.

Services at home and abroad secretary, Mrs. George, reported that in the $319.88 spent on this project, the sum of $96.75 went toward clothes and supplies for infants; $65.50 for food, including Christmas hampers, for needy families; $23 for work in India; and total of $30 for Save the Children funds for Korea and Overseas.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wright, 1200 Basil Street, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently and are pictured here at a party given in their honor by the Church of the Nazarene. They were married in Ottawa and moved to Victoria in 1943, where Mr. Wright went into business as an electrical contractor.

A Kitten

Mother Of Nine

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — In the supper club business they pick the girls for their beauty, allure and well-proportioned anatomy.

One of the long-stocked, attractive "girls" and a favorite at the Kitten Club of the Morton House Hotel here, is "Annette." She can plead guilty to the required qualifications.

Behind her role of being charming to supper club customers, she has another important career—she is the mother of nine children. Their ages range from two to 14 years and she is happily married to an under-standing truck driver.

Last year she took a part-time job as a waitress and then decided to find a better paying job because her husband needed an operation.

Her husband isn't jealous and is proud of her as a good wife and mother, he says.

Ringo in Favor of Marriage

By EDDIE GILMORE
BRIGHTON, England (AP)—Ringo Starr, 24, the Beatles' off-beat drummer, surfaced from the depths of a honeymoon hide-away Friday and said:
"Marriage—I think it's wonderful—especially after 25 hours."

Ringo wed Maureen Cox, 18, in London Thursday.
Dressed in a blue denim suit and a polka-dot shirt, Ringo stood in the garden of a house close by the English Channel with his arm around his bride. Asked if they were going to do have children, Ringo replied: "We hope so, but not too many. About three or four will do."

Asked if he thought the fact that he was married would detract from his popularity, Ringo answered:

"I don't think it's going to hurt our image. It may help—who knows?"

From what we can tell—and we keep in very close touch with the teen-agers—about 90 per cent of those who reacted have been in favor of the marriage.

But, he added with a frown, "From a Beatle point of view, it was a worrying problem getting married."

Ringo and Maureen met about 100 photographers and reporters in the garden of their lawyer's summer home.

"Have you kissed yet?" a reporter asked him.

"Kissed?" exclaimed Ringo. "Why, we're not that friendly yet!"

Ringo said he had a more-or-less secret wedding because he feared that if he had let the date be known the ceremony might have been spoiled by too many fans.

"I hope I didn't disappoint them, but a wedding is a rather serious thing and we didn't want to make a circus out of it."

Oak Bay Assessment

Ownership Statement 50 Years Out of Date

A real estate man has suggested an Oak Bay resident was 50 years out when he referred to ownership of a piece of land in the municipality, in connection with an assessment complaint.

"IN TRUST"
Resident William Holmes, 1963 St. Ann, said he will go to the assessment appeal board with a complaint about low assessment on golf courses, and on lots on Midland near Devon. He was quoted as saying these lots were being held in trust for the Hudson's Bay Company by Canada Trust.

Andrew Wright of Boorman Investment said HBC did own the land, 53 years ago.

He said, "In 1866 it formed part of Uplands farm, but it was sold by the company around 1907."

At the time of the sale, HBC has a restrictive covenant that the land would have only residential use for 50 years.

This covenant expired a few years ago.

Two companies own the lots: Uplands Limited and Uplands Property Trust.

Discussing the low assessment on these lots, Mr. Wright commented, "Uplands has a gentleman's agreement with the municipality not to sell these lots at the present time."

He pointed out the lots lack services, and if they are sold, pressure might be put on Oak Bay to provide the services before it is prepared for this development.

Reeve Alan Cox of Oak Bay said the lots are held in trust for Uplands, and have no connection with HBC.

Mystery Vessel Off Golden Gate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Russian tug Arban lay 20 miles southwest of the Golden Gate Friday on its slow unexplained progress down the Pacific Coast.

Canadian and then United States warships have been trailing the 235-foot craft since early in January.

Press Padded Bill For Legal Costs

Premier Bennett said Friday the press inadvertently padded the bill for litigation costs in the B.C. Electric takeover case.

It was reported Thursday that the legal bill paid by the government totalled $1,500,000, or almost $500,000 more than had been estimated.

Legal fees actually amounted to only $904,667 and about $144,000 less than estimates, deputy finance minister G. S. Bryson explained yesterday.

The error occurred when reporters added a figure of $605,026, given to the legislature last year, to the $904,667, the amount Premier Bennett gave in reply to a question Thursday.

Mr. Bryson said the two should not have been added, though nothing in the questions and answers filed in the legislature indicated this, and the latter amount indicated total legal costs.

Three Esquimalt Ships Leave for Orient Feb. 22

Three Esquimalt-based ships will leave for the Orient Monday, Feb. 22, not Feb. 15 as reported in Friday's Colonist.

They are the destroyer-escorts Saskatchewan and Mackenzie and the ocean escort Beacon Hill.

When the ships call in Hong Kong they will deliver wadded blankets knitted by the Victoria White Canoe Club to the Save The Children Fund society in that city.

The club is also donating a cheque and a generous supply of candy.

Pulp Mill Plan Not Rejected

VANCOUVER (CP)—Macmillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. is still interested in building a pulp mill at Kitimat, a spokesman said.

His remarks followed a statement by Kitimat reeve Sam Lindsay expressing concern that the northern city would be eliminated from Mac-Powell expansion plans.

Dentist Wins Chance To Drill Right-Handed

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Supreme Court of British Columbia has decided right-handed dentists don't have to work at left-handed chairs.

Mr. Justice F. O. Munroe ordered the B.C. College of Dental Surgeons Friday to give aspiring dentist Dr. Douglas Turner another exam — and this time use a right-handed chair.

Dr. Turner, who holds a degree in dentistry from the University of Alberta, had sued the college, claiming he failed the

TV TALK

By BRUCE LOWTHER

I didn't know until just the other day about the Eisenhower flap on the day of the Churchill funeral. It started at 6:08 a.m. when the British domestic news service Exchange Telegraph reported Ike had gone to view the bier at Westminster.

AP carried an Eddy Gilmore-byline story about it at 6:14, describing the tears in Ike's eyes. Reuters joined in at 6:17, NBC at 7 and UPI at 7:07. ABC wanted to say it but London bureau chief Bill Sheehan said it wasn't true. He was right.

AP finally checked in time to kill the story at 7:34. Reuters killed it at 8:04 and UPI at 8:20. Worst of all, CBS picked up and aired the yarn at 8:02, or 28 minutes after the AP kill. Ike arrived later in the day.

"That wasn't a white tornado—it was my husband running to the kitchen during the commercial."

She Recalls A World Of Darkness

By AL ARNASON

With total blindness in one eye and about 80 per cent vision in the other Mrs. W. R. Gibbs of Victoria knows she is one of the lucky ones.

Now more than 70 years old, Mrs. Gibbs has no complaints.

At 30 her vision was worse than it is now—and for 10 years she was all but totally blind.

She joined the lucky, but tiny minority of blind persons with sight restored after an operation 19 years ago.

HARDEST PART

A search of CNIB records showed she is the last person to have been struck from the rolls of the blind in Victoria—and that was a decade ago.

"The hardest thing to get used to when you are blind is the necessary dependence on others," she said in a White Cane Week interview.

The charter member of the White Cane Club said she still cannot lose some of the habits she developed while she was without her sight.

"I still put out my hand whenever I go through a doorway. I've had some nasty knocks from doors left partly open.

"It's funny. You guard against the things you fear the most. For instance I always feel behind me for a chair before I sit down."

She still remembers fondly the visits to her home by Vancouver Island's first home teacher for the CNIB, Miss Dorothy Stark, who retired in 1960.

"You know, in those days she used to travel on the street cars," said Mrs. Gibbs. One of the greatest contributions of the CNIB and the White Cane Club, she believes, is to teach blind to accept blindness and to recover their sense of humor.

"When we get together we all laugh at one another's little mishaps.

GOOD LAUGH

"I remember having a good laugh at a blind friend's mistake while we were camping some years ago," she said.

"She complained to me how the soap she had brought didn't lather very much even after she had been using it for two days.

"It turned out she had left the cellophane wrapper on and water never did reach the soap. We both laughed at that one."

Churchill's Estate To Wife, Children

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill bequeathed an estate worth £136,961 ($470,883) mainly to his wife and three children in a will made public Friday.

A far greater sum is thought to have been poured into a trust fund which Sir Winston, the will disclosed, set up for his children and grandchildren in 1946.

Associates believe the former prime minister's income from his writings since the Second World War alone exceeded £1,000,000 (£3,000,000). Virtually all of it went into the trust fund, which is exempt from estate taxes in Britain.

A lawyer who handles it confirmed that Churchill's children—actress Sarah, Mrs. Christopher (Mary) Soames and journalist Randolph Churchill—and grandchildren are "provided for" by the trust income.

The estate held by the 90-year-old statesman when he died on Jan. 24 included his London residence at 28 Hyde Park Gate and the valuable New Chapel stud farm near the Lingfield race track in Surrey. Sir Winston sold his country home, Chartwell, to a group of friends in 1946, but retained life tenancy.

The gross estate, before payment of debts and estate taxes, was £304,044 ($912,132), the net after payment of debts £266,054 ($798,162). The estate tax was £108,083 ($327,279). A third goes to the widow, Lady Churchill, and the other two-thirds is shared equally by the three children.

CAN SELL PAINTINGS

Sir Winston remarked in the will that he had given many of his paintings to his wife and urged her to "feel no reluctance or hesitation in selling any of the said pictures either with or without copyright." Just how many paintings were involved is not known, but there are about 250 of Sir Winston's works at Chartwell alone. A London art auction house estimated that at Churchill would fetch £1,000 ($3,000) and up at any public sale.

The will left £10,000 ($30,000) to Anthony Montague Browne, Churchill's private secretary since 1936 and bequests ranging from £200 to £650 ($600 to $1,950) to seven other secretaries and household employees.

Assessments Tops... But Tax Cut?

City officials were unable to say Friday whether a tax cut is possible this year, despite the largest assessment roll in the city's history.

City assessor Alfred Joyce said total assessment is $183,675,871, an increase of $6,564,000 from 1964.

Much of this is due to building costs setting a new record in the city, mainly because of high-rise apartment and shopping-centre construction, he said.

Assessments for industrial machinery, for school taxes, fell off.

One of the as-yet-unknown factors is school costs. It is expected they will be up this year by the equivalent of one mill, or $100,000.

By royal proclamation, the Maple Leaf becomes Canada's flag.

Hail and Farewell To Flags Monday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS. The new maple leaf flag will replace the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag in ceremonies across the nation Monday. The new flag, was proclaimed at Buckingham Palace Jan. 28. In Ottawa, the maple leaf flag will go up atop the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill at the stroke of noon accompanied by a 21-gun salute. The banner is described in the royal proclamation as "a red flag of proportions two by length and one by width, containing in its centre a white square the width of the flag, bearing a single red maple leaf, or, in heraldic terms, described as gules on a Canadian pale argent a maple leaf of the first." Governor-General Vanier will be the central figure in the Ottawa ceremony attended by Mr. Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, the chief antagonists in the parliamentary flag battle that spanned seven months of 1964.

CEREMONY IN CAPITAL

The ceremony in the capital will be only one of hundreds marking the occasion. The tone and emphasis in ceremonies at other levels and in other areas vary greatly. A certain reflection of the controversy engendered last year is the emphasis certain ceremonies give the outgoing ensign.

The largest army and navy ceremonies in B.C. will be in Victoria—a stronghold of British tradition. The British Columbia Navy Station and HMCS Naden.

21-GUN SALUTES

The navy and the militia will fire 21-gun salutes. Ships in port at HMC Dockyard in Esquimalt and at sea will mark the change with full-dress ceremony.

In Newfoundland, a British Dominion until 1949, the British Union Jack was never supplanted by the ensign. Premier Joseph Smallwood has ordered that as of Monday all provincial government buildings will have two flagpoles—one for the new flag and the other for the Union Jack. At Monday's ceremony they will be raised simultaneously.

AT AEMORIES

The Prince Edward Island ceremonies will be held at the Charlottetown Armories in the morning. The New Brunswick ceremony at Fredericton will

Cuban Gets Revenge For Embassy Damage

NEW YORK (UPI)—A Cuban national smashed a fruit jar filled with red paint on the white brick front of the Soviet United Nations mission Friday. He said it was a retaliatory attack for the damage done to the U.S. embassy in Moscow on Wednesday by a mob of Asian and Russian students.

Tormented India In Bloody Chaos

NEW DELHI (AP)—Mushrooming riots threw a vast section of tormented southern India into bloody chaos Friday. No one knew the exact death toll but it was more than 50. Moha sometimes 10,000 strong battled soldiers and policemen in a dozen places. They attacked trains in search of loot and burned government buildings.

WILD DISTORTION

The wild distortion began as protests against the government's decision to make Hindi the official language.

Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, deserted by some of his top aides, apparently was in serious political trouble.

Twice the prime minister called on President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, India's respected elder statesman from whom Shastri often seeks political advice. The prime minister was worried about the appalling increase in bloodshed.

A headmaster of an elementary school and a farmer in Madras State poured gasoline on their clothing and burned themselves to death.

FIVE HUMAN TORCHES

The total is now five who have turned themselves into flaming torches in recent weeks to protest the government's language policy.

The worst rioting was in Madras state, semi-tropical coastal area of about 36,000,000 Tamil-speaking people. It was there demonstrations started against making Hindi the language of multi-lingual India.

Clouds Halt Plane Search

SEATTLE (AP)—Cloudy, rainy weather in western Washington virtually stalled the search for a light plane missing on a flight from Olympia to Las Vegas with four persons aboard.

It will last two or three days if no one gets greedy, says Larry Allen, proprietor of the Pemberton Hotel.

But men are out at work. Logs and potatoes wait to be shipped. Cars are waiting in garages for parts, and unfinished buildings are waiting for materials.

Sam Gilmore and some other potato growers were offered $35 a ton by a seed company man late last year, but held out.

At Big Air Base YANKS FOIL RED RAIDERS

(From AP, UPI, Reuters)

Defenders of Da Nang air base, the jumping-off point for a U.S.-South Vietnamese strike Thursday against North Viet Nam, smashed a Communist Viet Cong band found dug in near the base's perimeter Friday.

South Vietnamese planes bombed the guerrillas and then a Ranger outfit closed in. Five of the guerrillas were killed and 10 captured.

Meanwhile, other developments in the Southeast Asia conflict included:

● Hints that China might intervene with Korean war-type "volunteers."

Chinese broadcasts said military units near Viet Nam, Formosa and Hong Kong had pledged support with actual deeds.

● A change by the Soviet Union that the U.S. is "stubbornly continuing to entertain the illusion" that it is possible for an improvement in American-Soviet relations despite the U.S. attacks, U.S. policy in Viet Nam could plunge relations between the two powers "to the level of the worst periods of the cold war," warned Mikhail Sagalayan, a Tass commentator.

● Reports by U.S. Air Force pilots that they met surprisingly little resistance on their latest strike. Some pilots said they were prepared to fight off Soviet-built MIGs but encountered little more than rifle-firing troops in foxholes.

● A new offensive by Communist Pathet Lao forces in Samneua province, Laos, threatening the rightwing area headquarters at Houa Muong. Samneua borders on North Viet Nam.

At Da Nang intelligence reports warned that the Viet Cong might try to land mortars by sea and all Americans were ordered to stay on the base Friday night.

Da Nang is guarded by Hawk ground-to-air missiles.

Military intelligence consider Da Nang, 80 miles south of the North Vietnamese border, No. 1 on the list of potential targets of Viet Cong mortars, though such a thrust could mean another

Attorney-General:

Letter Decision By Next Week

Legal experts advised Attorney-General Robert Bonner Friday that further consideration is needed before action is decided against the writer of the phony Premier Bennett letter.

The attorney-general said it is possible a decision will be reached during the weekend, but it will more likely be early next week. Mr. Bonner said he would continue his silence on the identity of the Vancouver man who, according to an RCMP report, wrote the letter.

PGE Didn't Rehire Williamson Firm

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Pacific Great Eastern Railway announced Friday that its contract with the Al Williamson public relations firm is ended.

General manager J. S. Broadbent said the PGE did not renew the contract when it terminated Oct. 31.

Since then, Williamson, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the mysterious "W. A. C. Bennett" letter and the Stonehill case, has been used only "as required."

One of the times he was required was at the start of the present strike against the government-owned railway by 177 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen (BRT).

Mr. Broadbent said, starting Feb. 15 the railway's press and personnel relations will be handled by Hugh Armstrong, a former employee of the Williamson firm.

He said the decision to replace the private Williamson firm with a public relations officer who would be a member of the PGE staff is one of long standing.

Creditiste Charges RCMP Rough-Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Gilles Gregoire, deputy leader of the Creditistes, charged Friday he was manhandled and abused by three RCMP constables who he said forced him into a car on Parliament Hill grounds and took him to Carleton County jail in Ottawa.

The incident occurred after the diminutive member of Parliament for Lapointe refused to accept a warrant for two traffic offences because they were not issued in French.

He said he told the officers he wanted to see Justice Minister Favreau about the matter or to at least use a telephone but said he was denied the request.

Mr. Gregoire told his story to a group of reporters in the parliamentary press gallery. Mr. Gregoire said: "One of the officers seemed to lose his head completely. He twisted my arm behind my back and while another held the car door open he put a knee in my back and sent me flying across the back seat of the car, almost through the other door."

The traffic offences occurred in October. One was a $30 fine for going 55 miles an hour in a 35-mile-an-hour zone on the road to Ottawa Airport. The second was a $5 fine for parking in a no-parking zone on Parliament Hill.

Mr. Gregoire said when he arrived at the jail "they were about to throw me into the showers" when he was rescued by the governor, Robert Webb. He said he then was allowed to phone Mr. Favreau. He told the minister he would go to jail for the seven days rather than pay the fines involved, unless he was served with warrants of commitment in French rather than in English.

The minister had undertaken to have his own office staff translate the documents so that Mr. Gregoire would not stay in jail.

Mr. Gregoire was released around 6:30 p.m. after paying the two fines and $3.50 in costs in each case.

An RCMP spokesman said the force has received no complaint from Mr. Gregoire.

Strike Woe, Then Snow—Town Hits Low

PEMBERTON (CP)—Things are back more or less to normal in this mountain-ringed valley community 95 miles north of Vancouver.

But for a while it looked like the village's world might be coming to an end.

A strike was called on the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern railway, this area's main connection with civilization, its access to markets and its supplier of the essentials of life. (See also Page 2.)

Then the snow came—three feet in 20 hours, clogging its second-best escape route, a rough, gravel road to Squamish, 55 miles to the south.

Then the telephone went out.

But that was a week ago. The PGE strike is still slowing things a bit.

But the PGE is running a daily emergency train—manned by supervisory personnel dressed in business suits and slacks and sports shirts. The train brings in food and mail and takes out, free of charge, people who really need to go somewhere.

The road is again drivable, if one has a gambling instinct.

And the telephones are working once more.

A double shipment of beer squeaked into Pemberton on a freight from Lillooet to the north, five minutes before the strike deadline.

It will last two or three days if no one gets greedy, says Larry Allen, proprietor of the Pemberton Hotel.

But men are out at work. Logs and potatoes wait to be shipped. Cars are waiting in garages for parts, and unfinished buildings are waiting for materials.

Sam Gilmore and some other potato growers were offered $35 a ton by a seed company man late last year, but held out.

Now Sam has more than 200 tons of potatoes worth $130 because of a shortage. But how, asks Sam, is he to get them to market?

Garageman D. A. McEwan is waiting for car parts. He orders them, but they don't come.

Market owner Don Hardacre is having the same trouble. Everyone hopes the strike will end soon.

Victim Gone, Suspect Dead

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Homicide detectives Friday sought a dismembered body in the case of the "Mystery of the Blood-Soaked Room."

They also sought to determine the identity of "C.A.R." Police had one body, but that told them little. They continued their search for "Miss X."

Old Rancher Battled Army, U.S.

ALAMAGORDO, N.M. — John Prather, a 91-year-old rancher who fought both the U.S. Army and the internal revenue service to a standstill to keep his land from becoming part of a missile range, has died.

Prather gained attention in the 1950s when he armed himself with a rifle and walked past army guards and held fast against condemnation proceedings.

A federal court had condemned 28,000 acres of Prather's land to permit expansion of McGregor missile range.

After a truce, Prather then defied the internal revenue service, which wanted to collect taxes on the $108,985 a federal court had awarded Prather for the land. The $108,985 cheque has remained unclaimed in an Albuquerque bank.

Prather said he defied the federal government because he couldn't understand "how a man could sell his birthright."

QUEBEC — Mr. Justice Georges-Rene Fournier of Quebec Superior Court has postponed the date of execution of Leopold Dion until next June 25. Dion, convicted of the capital murder of 13-year-old Pierre Marquis of Quebec City, was to have gone to the gallows Feb. 19.

WASHINGTON — President Johnson announced a state department shakeup that puts his old friend Thomas C. Mann in the No. 3 spot now held by Averell Harriman as undersecretary for economic affairs.

Mann, now assistant secretary for inter-American affairs, will be succeeded by Jack Hood Vauxha, now ambassador to Panama. Harriman will become ambassador-at-large.

LONDON — Queen Elizabeth has arrived back in London from her state visits to Ethiopia and the Sudan. Prince Philip left for the Sudan for a six-week tour of Far East and Australia.

YUBA CITY, Calif. — Roy Joseph Travis, 26, of Vancouver, B.C., suspected of smuggling heroin from Mexico to Vancouver, was arrested after he landed his single-engine plane at the airport here and charged with possession of 18 ounces of the narcotic. Officers estimated the value of the heroin at $125,000.

VANCOUVER — A contempt of court conviction against Crown prosecutor David Vernon was quashed in Supreme Court by Mr. Justice Munroe. The judge ordered a $200 fine imposed against Vernon be repaid. Magistrate D. M. Nicholson of Hancay ruled Vernon in contempt Dec. 22 after Vernon refused to prosecute a case which, he said, was completely unexpected and new to him and for which he had no time to prepare.

thought to have been sliced into a number of small pieces, in the dumps and sewers of the city.

A potential clue to unlock at least some of the mystery was a lighter bearing the initials C.A.R. found in the hotel room of Walter A. Emerick, 38. He was dead. A 22-calibre pistol lay near his body.

He was the key, or so police thought, to the strange case that has puzzled officers since Monday.

It all started when a maid at the Gunter Hotel saw Emerick wrapping a large bundle in newspapers. She said he put his finger to his lips, silencing her, and walked out. The maid then saw the blood-spattered room.

PRINTS FOUND
The only clues in the room were bits of a woman's hair, a lipstick-stained cigar butt and a pair of stockings.

Emerick had rented the room. His fingerprints were found on the room's bathtub, dresser, chairs, the walls, floor and carpet.

Police put out a state-wide alert for Emerick. They found him in another San Antonio hotel dead.

MENTAL PATIENT
He had registered under the name of Douglas Ashley. The name is that of an escaped mental patient once sentenced to death for shooting and then burning a Houston man.

Emerick shot himself when police tried to break into his room. The only clue they found was the initial lighter. They don't know whether it belonged to a man or woman.

CHECKGIRLS
Authorities were going over a list of Emerick's known girlfriends as well as missing person lists.

Police were sure there was a body. Bexar county medical examiner Dr. Ruben Santos said the blood found in the hotel room was definitely human, the hair definitely a woman's, and the blood in the room was more than a person could lose and live.

Police said Emerick, wanted for forgery, checked into the hotel Feb. 2. A woman was seen with him several times, but no one knew who she was.

'Peace Hydro Project Rescued B.C. Economy'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The provincial government's decision to develop the Peace River hydro potential will result in $1,250,000,000 being poured into the provincial economy by 1968. Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said Friday.

Mr. Williston said the decision pulled the B.C. economy "out of a nosedive and drove it upward to prosperity."

Assurances that hydro electricity would be available in north central B.C. triggered a chain reaction of spectacular development in the forest and mining industries, he told a joint meeting of the Electric Service League of B.C. and the Vancouver Electric Club.

Bus Runs

Riders' Pleas Heard

By JEAN BAIN

COBBLE HILL—Vancouver Island Coach Lines has taken three steps to answer residents' demands for adequate bus transportation in the Cobble Hill-Mill Bay area. It was announced Friday.

George Bonner, chairman of a five-member committee named recently to campaign for transit changes, said Coach Lines:

- Started a limited bus service Friday through Mill Bay.
- Made arrangements for more adequate express delivery.

• Provided for the routing of buses through Duncan's city centre.

He said credit for the Coach Lines action is due to an eight-point brief the committee sent recently to the Public Utilities Commission after the PUC asked for more details about the district's problems.

M.L.A. CREDITED

He also credit the interest shown and the work carried out by Esquimalt M.L.A. Herbert Bruch, who has been pressing Coach Lines and the PUC for better service.

Mr. Bonner said Mr. Bruch notified him of the three Coach Lines moves, which answered three of the eight points in the brief.

DAILY SERVICE

The M.L.A. also said he will press for daily bus service through the Mill Bay area on completion of the rebuilding and resurfacing of the old highway through the community.

The committee has called a public meeting in the Cobble Hill community hall at 8 p.m. Wednesday to discuss the new developments and make future plans.

Art Williams waits no longer for good bows

Ladysmith Bowmaker Aiming for Expansion

By KLAUS MUENTER

LADYSMITH—Art Williams, 40, who lives on the Trans-Canada Highway near here, turned a hobby into a lucrative business five years ago when he decided to become a fulltime bowmaker.

Now Mr. Williams says he plans expansion of his factory so it will be able to turn out 30 bows a day instead of the present 100 a month.

A trained carpenter and pattern maker from England, he says, he entered the business because "when I started shooting several years ago, I found I could not buy a decent bow and even today you have to wait if you want to buy a good one."

He now employs Jim Dewar of Ladysmith steadily and sometimes they are assisted by his wife and up to four men.

His expansion will cost $25,000, most of it invested in special machines to improve bow and arrow production, and its completion will mean five more employees.

Mr. Williams is the only full-time bowmaker west of the Great Lakes. The other three in Canada are in Ontario.

He came to Canada as a baby, returned at the age of 11, trained as a pattern maker and came back at 23, working in Toronto and Edmonton before moving to Vancouver Island in 1956.

When he first began building bows, he built some for other people and gave them away. But that cost money, so the business began.

His products range in price from $36 to $180. The bows consist of laminated hardwood topped by a thin but strong and elastic plastic layer.

Mr. Williams imports sheets of plastic but will produce them here when the factory is enlarged. He has developed a filament winding process to increase the "flexural strength" of the plastic.

The bowmaker says he designed most of the machines in his workshop, adapting them for bowmaking.

Whenever Island bowmen meet, most of their bows come from his firm.

But Mr. Williams says "we would like to see more bows go into business," because this would create greater interest in archery and his firm would benefit.

He should know, because he is president of both the Canadian and B.C. archery associations.

Mr. Williams estimated membership in the Canadian association at about 1,500 and adds, "but there are thousands who are not organized."

REFERS TO PRESS

Wicks, in summing up, again referred to the papers and said, "This case is slanderous."

The crown pointed to Wicks' demeanor in court and to his frequent violent outbursts. At one time Friday, Wicks was restrained by RCMP.

When he was being told he was guilty, Wicks claimed again it was "slander started by the newspapers."

"No, I wouldn't," the 17-year-old replied.

SEVERAL OCCASIONS

The youth said that "on several occasions I've seen him give the kids beatings." Asked if Pamela was beaten, he replied, "Not as often, but some."

Boyd said they were not normal licks but were of a more severe nature, resulting in bruises. Wicks "used hands, feet, anything."

ALL PARTS OF BODY

The youth said Wicks was not of a calm nature and, while none of the children went to hospital as the result of beatings, they were bruised and possibly cut. The beatings were to all parts of the body, including the face and head.

He told Mr. Ryan it was not a happy household. The children feared Wicks and he did, too, in a general way.

ANSWER ADJOURNMENT

After Boyd testified, Wicks asked for another adjournment, repeating a statement he had made several times during the trial—that slanderous statements had been made in the press. He also claimed Robert had been "talked to."

Dentist Dr. Fred Ling, recalled at Wicks' request, was shown a copy of the local paper and asked if statements reported from the earlier hearing were correct.

Comox Valley 84-Bed Structure

$1,800,000 Hospital Gets B.C. Go-Ahead

The first step toward a new $1,800,000 hospital for the Comox Valley was announced on Friday by Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell and Health Minister Martin.

The two ministers said the health department had given Comox district hospital officials the authority to call tenders for the 84-bed hospital.

WITHIN 24 HOURS

Their announcement came less than 24 hours after Mr. Campbell and Mr. Martin said the department had approved construction of a 25-bed nursing home wing at the Campbell River hospital.

The Comox district structure will be built next to the present St. Joseph's Hospital in Comox. Its top floor will be left unfinished in the first stage.

FULL RANGE

The ministers said the new hospital will have a full range of acute-care services, including an operating room, a case room and diagnostic and treatment facilities.

They said the intention is to convert the old hospital into a nursing-care unit.

This unit will be under BCHIS through the new provincial plan announced by Mr. Martin Thursday.

'SIMPLY MARVELOUS'

In Campbell River, hospital administrator Arthur Lightfoot said Friday the nursing-home plan of $1 a day co-insurance for older people is "simply marvelous."

He said the 25-bed unit is "sorely needed in this area" as a nursing home in Comox is full and Campbell River district residents must go elsewhere, to such places as Victoria or Vancouver.

IS MORE LATER

The new home will be so built that it can take 15 more beds later. It will be located on the grounds of the present hospital and joined to the main floor by a covered walkway.

Construction will begin as soon as possible.

Mr. Lightfoot said the hospital's fourth floor also will be finished as soon as possible. The hope is for completion in two or three months, providing an additional 12 beds in the main hospital for a total of 70.

'LOTS OF THANKS'

"Lots of thanks must go to Dan Campbell," he said, "for the wonderful work he has done in getting this nursing home approved."

Canon T. D. Proctor, president of the old-age pensioners' group in Campbell River, said everyone is "very delighted and quite excited."

He said Campbell River is "growing tremendously and there is a great need for a nursing home in this area."

"Now our older people need not leave here."

"We have been granted everything we asked for," he said.

Goldstream Plunge

Two in Death Truck? RCMP Still Hunting

The possibility two people were in a death truck found in Goldstream River Friday is being investigated by Colwood RCMP.

The body of Duncan chicken farmer Eino Olavi Suominen, 37, of 2507 Inverarity Road, was discovered in the overturned truck.

The truck went into the river from a narrow bridge. It fell 10 feet into five feet of water.

Both side windows were knocked out. RCMP said Friday night they thought Mr. Suominen was the only occupant of the truck but they couldn't be sure.

"Someone else could have been swept away by the water," a police spokesman said.

The truck was coming down a paved road from Goldstream campsite and started across the narrow wooden bridge.

ALONG BEAM

The wheels of the truck went along a narrow beam at the side of the bridge for about two feet. Then the truck tipped to the left and plunged into the swiftly moving water.

Police believe Mr. Suominen was knocked out by the 10-foot fall.

The accident apparently occurred Thursday night. The victim's watch stopped at 11:25.

AUTOPSY WAITED

Mr. Suominen's body was taken to Sand's funeral chapel in Colwood, then to Royal Jubilee Hospital for an autopsy.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said the results of the post-mortem will determine whether an inquest should be called.

Mr. Suominen was in egg and chicken farming in Duncan for five years.

He is survived by a widow and two children.

Urgent

Sewage Study In Ganges

GANGES—A Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce committee has begun a survey in Ganges village on the possible establishment of a sewage area in the more congested part of the village.

Officials say their object is to eliminate a health hazard and clean up the beaches.

The problems arising from septic-tank usage have increased rapidly in the past year or two and are becoming urgent.

$5 A MONTH

First estimates suggest a $72,000 system, which would serve 60 households at a cost averaging $5 per household per month.

Committee members say they have so far received a favorable reception from nearly all people contacted.

A meeting of affected property owners will be held as soon as the survey is complete.

PLEDGE REQUIRED

If the reaction is favorable, a pledge will be required to finance an engineering study costing about $1,200.

This cost would be assumed by a new sewage district if approved in a following plebiscite.

If not, those who gave the pledge would have to pay it.

Cowichan Bay To Lose Ramp

DUNCAN—The only launching ramp for bigger boats at Cowichan Bay apparently has been lost, president Arnie Williams of the Cowichan Fish and Game Association said Friday.

He said lands department officials have informed the association that the launching ramp will become a log dump.

HAVE TO PROVE

The officials said the association would have to prove a boat ramp at the bay would be of a permanent nature, with parking facilities for 50 cars.

Mr. Williams said the association feels this proof is "next to impossible" to obtain.

He said CNR officials will be asked if the association could establish a launching ramp at the new wharf project.

It could only be used on weekends, as the road leading to it is private.

Mr. Williams was re-elected president at the association's annual meeting Thursday night.

Other officers are Bernie Falconberg, vice-president; Jack Fielden, secretary - treasurer, and directors Otto Lachmann, Fred Doerr and Jack Skerchley.

By royal proclamation, the Maple Leaf becomes Canada's flag.

Hail and Farewell To Flags Monday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
The new maple leaf flag will replace the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag in ceremonies across the nation Monday. The new flag, which was proclaimed at Buckingham Palace Jan. 28, in Ottawa, the maple leaf flag will go up atop the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill at the stroke of noon accompanied by a 21-gun salute.

Warrants Not in French

Creditiste Charges RCMP Rough-Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Gilles Gregoire, deputy leader of the Creditistes, charged Friday he was manhandled and abused by three RCMP constables who he said forced him into a car on Parliament Hill grounds and took him to Carleton County jail in Ottawa.

The incident occurred after the diminutive member of Parliament for Lapointe refused to accept a warrant for two traffic offences because they were not issued in French. He said he told the officers he wanted to see Justice Minister Favreau about the matter or to at least use a telephone but said he was denied the request.

Mr. Gregoire told his story to a group of reporters in the parliamentary press gallery. Mr. Gregoire said "One of the officers seemed to lose his head completely. He twisted my arm behind my back and while another held the car door open he put a knee in my back and sent me flying across the back seat of the car almost through the other door."

The traffic offences occurred in October. One was a $30 fine for going 35 miles an hour in a 35-mile-an-hour zone on the road to Ottawa Airport. The second was a $5 fine for parking in a parking zone on Parliament Hill.

Mr. Gregoire said when he arrived at the jail "they were about to throw me into the showers" when he was rescued by the governor, Robert Webb. He said he then was allowed to phone Mr. Favreau. He told the minister he would go to jail for the seven days rather than pay the fines involved, unless he was served with warrants in English. The minister had undertaken to have his own office staff translate the documents so that Mr. Gregoire would not stay in jail. Mr. Gregoire was released around 6:30 p.m. after paying the two fines and $1.50 in costs in each case. An RCMP spokesman said the force has received no complaint from Mr. Gregoire.

as rules on a Canadian pale argentine maple leaf of the first. Governor-General Vanier will be the central figure in the Ottawa ceremony attended by Mr. Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, the chief antagonists in the parliamentary flag battle that spanned seven months of 1964.

ONE OF HUNDREDS

The ceremony in the capital will be only one of hundreds marking the occasion. The tone and emphasis in ceremonies at other levels and in other areas vary greatly.

A certain reflection of the controversy considered last year in the emphasis certain ceremonies give the outgoing ensign.

The largest army and navy ceremonies in B.C. will be in Victoria—a stronghold of British tradition in Canada—at Work Point Barracks and HMCS Naden.

In Newfoundland, a British Dominion until 1949, the British Union Jack was never supplanted by the ensign. Premier Joseph Smallwood has ordered that as of Monday all provincial government buildings will have two flagpoles—one for the new flag and the other for the Union Jack. At Monday's ceremony they will be raised simultaneously.

AT ARMORIES

The Prince Edward Island ceremonies will be held at the Charlottetown Armories in the morning. The New Brunswick ceremony at Fredericton will

Cuban Gets Revenge For Embassy Damage

NEW YORK (UPI)—A Cuban national smashed a fruit jar filled with red paint on the white brick front of the Soviet United Nations mission Friday. He said it was a retaliatory attack for the damage done to the U.S. embassy in Moscow on Wednesday by a mob of Asian and Russian students.

Tormented India In Bloody Chaos

NEW DELHI (AP)—Mushrooming riots threw a vast section of tormented southern India into bloody chaos Friday. No one knew the exact death toll but it was more than 50. Mobs sometimes 10,000 strong battled soldiers and policemen in a dozen places. They attacked trains in search of loot and burned government buildings.

WILD DISTORTION

The wild distortion began as protests against the government's decision to make Hindi the official language.

Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, deserted by some of his top aides. Apparently was in serious political trouble.

Twice the prime minister called on President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan. India's respected elder statesman from whom Shastri often seeks political advice. The prime minister was worried about the appalling increase in bloodshed.

A headmaster of an elementary school and a farmer in Madras State poured gasoline on their clothing and burned themselves to death.

FIVE HUMAN TORCHES

The total is now five who have turned themselves into flaming torches in recent weeks to protest the government's language policy.

The worst rioting was in Madras state, semi-tropical coastal area of about 36,000,000 Tamil-speaking people.

It was there demonstrations started against making Hindi the language of multi-lingual India.

Clouds Halt Plane Search

SEATTLE (AP)—Cloudy, rainy weather in western Washington virtually stalled the search for a light plane missing on a flight from Olympia to Las Vegas with four persons aboard.

Then the snow came—three feet in 30 hours, clogging a rough, gravel road to Squamish, 35 miles to the south.

Then the telephone went out. But that was a week ago. The PGE strike is still slowing things a bit.

But the PGE is running a daily emergency train—manned by supervisory personnel dressed in business suits and slacks and sports shirts. The train brings in food and mail and takes out, free of charge, people who really need to go somewhere.

The road is again drivable, if one has a gambling instinct.

And the telephones are working once more. A double shipment of beer squeaked into Pemberton on a freight from Lillooet to the north, five minutes before the strike deadline.

It will last two or three days if no one gets greedy, says Larry Allen, proprietor of the Pemberton Hotel.

But men are out of work. Logs and potatoes wait to be shipped. Cars are waiting in garages for parts, and unfinished buildings are waiting for materials.

Sam Gilmore and some other potato growers were offered $35 a ton by a seed company man late last year, but held out.

YANKS RIP VIET CONG

(From AP, UPI, Reuters)

Defenders of Da Nang air base, the jumping-off point for a U.S.-South Vietnamese strike Thursday against North Viet Nam, smashed a Communist Viet Cong band found dug in near the base's perimeter Friday.

South Vietnamese planes bombed the guerrillas and then a Ranger outfit closed in. Five of the guerrillas were killed and 10 captured.

Meanwhile, other developments in the Southeast Asia conflict included:

● Hints that China might intervene with Korean war-type "volunteers."

Chinese broadcasts said military units near Viet Nam, Formosa, and Hong Kong had pledged support with actual deeds.

● A charge by the Soviet Union that the U.S. is "stubbornly continuing to entertain the illusion" that it is possible for an improvement in American-Soviet relations despite the U.S. attacks. U.S. policy in Viet Nam could plunge relations between the two powers "to the level of the worst periods of the cold war," warned Mikhail Sagatelyan, a Tass commentator.

● Reports by U.S. Air Force pilots that they met surprisingly little resistance on their latest strike. Some pilots said they were prepared to fight off Soviet-built MiGs but encountered little more than rifle-firing troops in foxholes.

● A new offensive by Communist Pathet Lao forces in Samneua province, Laos, threatening the rightwing area headquarters at Houa Muong. Samneua borders on North Viet Nam.

At Da Nang intelligence reports warned that the Viet Cong might try to land mortars by sea and all Americans were ordered to stay on the base Friday night.

Da Nang is guarded by Hawk ground-to-air missiles.

Military intelligence considers Da Nang, 80 miles south of the North Vietnamese border, No. 1 on the list of potential targets of Viet Cong mortars, though such a thrust could mean another

Attorney-General:

Letter Decision By Next Week

By IAN STREET

Legal experts advised Attorney-General Robert Bonner Friday that further consideration is needed before action is decided against the writer of the phony Premier Bennett letter.

The attorney-general said it is possible a decision will be reached during the weekend, but it will more likely be early next week.

Mr. Bonner said he would continue his silence on the identity of the Vancouver man who, according to an RCMP report, wrote the letter.

PGE Didn't Rehire Williamson Firm

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Pacific Great Eastern Railway announced Friday that its contract with the Al Williamson public relations firm is ended. General manager J. S. Broadbent said the PGE did not renew the contract when it terminated Oct. 31.

Since then, Williamson, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the mysterious "W. A. J. Bennett" letter and the Stonehill case, has been used only "as required."

One of the times he was required was at the start of the present strike against the government-owned railway by 177 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen (CLC).

Mr. Broadbent said, starting Feb. 15 the railway's press and personnel relations will be handled by Hugh Armstrong, a former employee of the Williamson firm.

He said the decision to replace the private Williamson firm with a public relations officer who would be a member of the PGE staff is one of long standing.

Strike Woe, Then Snow—Town Hits Low

PEMBERTON (CP)—Things are back to normal in this mountain-ringed valley community 35 miles north of Vancouver.

But for a while it looked like the village's world might be coming to an end.

A strike was called on the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern railway. This area's main connection with civilization, its access to markets and its supplier of the essentials of life. (See also Page 2.)

Then the snow came—three feet in 30 hours, clogging a rough, gravel road to Squamish, 35 miles to the south.

Then the telephone went out. But that was a week ago. The PGE strike is still slowing things a bit.

Sam Gilmore and some other potato growers were offered $35 a ton by a seed company man late last year, but held out.

Now Sam has more than 200 tons of potatoes worth $130 because of a shortage.

But how, asks Sam, is he to get them to market?

Garageman D. A. McEwan is waiting for car parts. He orders them, but they don't come.

Market owner Don Hardacre is having the same trouble. Everyone hopes the strike will end soon.
